MINORITY VIEWS

[To accompany H.R. 2739]

[Including cost estimate of the Congressional Budget Office]

The Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (H.R. 2739) to implement the United States-Singapore Free Trade Agreement, having considered the same, reports favorably thereon without amendment and recommends that the bill do pass.

CONTENTS

PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

On May 6, 2003, United States and Singapore entered into a bilateral Free Trade Agreement ("FTA"), concluding a negotiation process that began in December 2000.[1] H.R. 2739 approves the U.S.-Singapore FTA submitted to Congress on July 15, 2003 and makes changes to United States law necessary to ensure compliance with the agreement. The legislation contains four titles: Title I, "Approval of, and General Provisions to, Relating the Agreement;" Title II, "Customs Provisions;" Title III, "Relief from Imports;" and Title IV, "Temporary Entry of Business Persons." The Committee's consideration of H.R. 2739 was limited to title IV of the legislation. Title IV establishes 5,400 annual professional worker visas for Singaporean citizens to enter the United States on a temporary basis.

H.R. 2739 was considered pursuant to the Bipartisan Trade Promotion Authority Act of 2002[2] and the Trade Act of 1974.[3] As a result, the legislation was considered on an expedited basis which did not permit committees of jurisdiction to amend the legislation after its formal introduction. However, the Committee made several changes to draft implementing legislation transmitted to the Committee for a pre-introduction ″mock markup" on July 10, 2003. These changes were substantially reflected in H.R. 2739.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR THE LEGISLATION

U.S.-SINGAPORE FREE TRADE AGREEMENT

Background

On May 6, 2003, the United States and Singapore entered into a bilateral FTA, concluding a 14-round negotiation process that began in December 2000.[4] Singapore is America's largest trading partner in Southeast Asia with bilateral trade of $31.0 billion and a U.S. bilateral merchandise trade surplus in 2002 of $1.4 billion. Singapore is the 11th largest export market for the United States with $16.2 billion in merchandise exports in 2002. It is the 16th largest source for goods imported into the United States with $14.8 billion in 2002. The United States is Singapore's second largest trading partner. The United States runs surpluses with Singapore in aircraft; electrical machinery; plastic; mineral fuel; instruments; miscellaneous chemical products; aluminum; dyes, paints, putty; and iron and steel products. The U.S. incurs deficits with Singapore in machinery; organic chemicals; knit apparel; fish and seafood; woven apparel; and books and newspapers.[5]

Last month, the U.S. International Trade Commission (ITC) released the results of its investigation into the probable economic effects of a U.S.-Singapore FTA. The ITC Report concluded that the economy-wide effects on U.S. trade, production, and economic welfare of the FTA tariff reductions are likely to be negligible to very small. The report explained that this is not an unexpected finding given the current open trade relationship between the U.S. and Singapore, the relatively small trade and bilateral investment flows relative to U.S. trade and investment worldwide, and Singapore's small economy relative to that of the United States. At the sectoral level, the report concluded that some sectors of the U.S. economy likely would experience increased import competition from Singapore, while other sectors likely would experience increased export opportunities in Singapore.

Summary of U.S.-Singapore FTA Provisions Pertaining to the Jurisdiction of the Committee on the Judiciary

Although the Committee's formal legislative consideration of H.R. 2739 was limited to title IV of the legislation, which implemented changes to United States immigration law, the U.S.-Singapore FTA also contained intellectual property and competition chapters that fall within the jurisdiction of the Committee.

Intellectual Property Rights (IPR)

Chapter 16 of the U.S.-Singapore FTA contains several provisions which enhance protections for IPR. The FTA requires Singapore to more aggressively enforce laws prohibiting piracy of intellectual property and establishes that non-discrimination obligations apply for all types of intellectual property. The FTA ensures government involvement in resolving disputes between trademarks and Internet domain names (important to prevent "cyber-squatting" of trademarked domain names). It also applies the principle of "first-in-time, first-in-right" to trademarks and geographical indicators (place-names) applied to products.

The Agreement streamlines the trademark filing process by allowing applicants to use their own national patent/trademark offices for filing trademark applications. The FTA ensures that only authors, composers, and other copyright owners have the right the make their works available online. Copyright owners maintain rights to temporary copies of their works on computers. (This was aimed at protecting music, videos, software, or text from widespread unauthorized sharing via the Internet). Copyrighted works and phonograms are protected for extended terms, consistent with U.S. standards and international trends. The FTA also contains anti-circumvention provisions aimed at preventing the tampering with technologies (such as embedded codes on discs) that are designed to prevent piracy and unauthorized distribution over the Internet. It also ensures that governments use only legitimate computer software (in order to set a positive example for private users). Singapore is to prohibit the production of optical discs (CDs, DVDs or software) without a source identification code unless authorized by the copyright holder in writing.

Under the FTA, protection for encrypted program-carrying satellite signals extends to the signals themselves as well as the programming. This is designed to prevent piracy of satellite television programming. Both sides agreed to criminalize unauthorized reception and re-distribution of satellite signals. The Agreement also contains limited liability for Internet Service Providers (ISPs)—reflecting the balance struck in the U.S. Digital Millennium Copyright Act between legitimate ISP activity and the infringement of copyrights. In essence, both sides are to provide immunity to Internet service providers for complying with notification and take-down procedures when material suspected to be infringing on copyright is hosted on their servers. The FTA provides for a patent term to be extended to compensate for up-front administrative or regulatory delays in granting the original patent, consistent with U.S. practice. The grounds for revoking a patent are limited to the same grounds required to originally refuse a patent.

In addition, the Agreement requires the government of Singapore to establish criminal penalties for pirated copies from legitimate products. The Singaporean government guarantees that it has authority to seize, forfeit, and destroy counterfeit and pirated goods and the equipment used to produce them. IPR laws are to be enforced against traded goods, including transshipments, to deter violators from using U.S. or Singaporean ports or free-trade zones to traffic in pirated products. The FTA mandates both statutory and actual damages under Singaporean law for IPR violations (as a deterrent to piracy) and provides that monetary damages be awarded even if actual economic harm (retail value, plus the profits made by violators) cannot be determined. Singapore is to cooperate in preventing pirated and counterfeit goods from being imported into the United States. The FTA sharply restricts Singapore from using compulsory licenses to copy patented drugs and establishes barriers to the import of patented drugs sold at lower prices in third countries.[6]

Competition Policy/Antitrust

Chapter 12 of the U.S.-Singapore FTA commits Singapore to enact a law regulating anti-competitive business conduct and to create a competition commission by January 2005. Specific conduct guarantees are imposed to ensure that commercial enterprises in which the Singapore government has effective influence will operate on the basis of commercial considerations and that such enterprises will not discriminate in their treatment of U.S. firms. Singapore thus commits to maintain its existing policy of not interfering with the commercial decisions of Government Linked Companies (GLCs) and to provide annual information on GLCs with substantial revenues or assets. This requirement is particularly important because GLCs comprise a relatively large part (nearly 40 percent) of Singapore's economy. A summary of provisions related to competition and antitrust contained in the U.S.-Singapore FTA is set forth below.

Chapter 12 of the Agreement helps ensure that the opportunities created by trade liberalization are supported by healthy competitive domestic markets, allowing the firms of each country to compete freely and unhampered by anticompetitive business conduct in either country's territory. Firms that are subject to antitrust enforcement action will be guaranteed basic procedural safeguards. Since these protections already exist in the United States, no changes to United States law are necessary. While state monopolies and state enterprises do not account for a significant portion of either country's economy, the provisions governing these entities will help eliminate the potential for either party to favor domestic firms in the sale or purchase of goods and services.

Specifically, Chapter 12 ensures that both countries:

- Enforce domestic antitrust law that prohibits anticompetitive business conduct;
- Cooperate in the enforcement of antitrust law;
- Ensure that any private or public monopolies designated by either country, and any state enterprises, be subject to disciplinary action for abusing their status or otherwise discriminating in a manner that harms the interests of the other country.
- Explicitly recognize that anticompetitive conduct threatens the free flow of bilateral trade and investment, and seeks to secure the benefits of the FTA by prohibiting such conduct, encouraging economically sound competition policies, and furthering transparency and cooperation;
- Expand previous competition provisions by affirming that antitrust laws be enforced in a neutral manner that does discriminate on the basis of nationality;
- Ensure basic procedural rights for firms that are subject to antitrust enforcement actions: each country will provide a right to be heard and to present evidence before imposing a sanction or remedy;
- Provide for consultations and further transparency by allowing either country to request from the other specific public information regarding antitrust enforcement activity, official monopolies and state enterprises, and any exemptions from their antitrust laws.

Finally, it is important to note that the provisions regarding antitrust law and enforcement are not subject to dispute settlement under the Agreement.

Temporary Entry

Title IV of the U.S.-Singapore Free Trade Agreement draft implementing legislation forwarded to the Committee by the Administration for its July 10, 2003 "mock markup" reflected U.S. commitments under Chapter 14 of the U.S.-Singapore FTA pertaining to the temporary entry of business persons. However, this draft legislation was considerably amended during the Committee's "mock markup" on July 10, 2003. These Committee recommendations were subsequently incorporated into the introduced version of H.R. 2739. These changes are highlighted in the 'Pre-Introduction 'Mock Markup' of U.S.-Singapore FTA Implementing Legislation and Committee Amendments Incorporated Into H.R. 2739" section of this report.

In general, Chapter 14 is consistent with existing provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act ("INA"). The four categories of persons eligible for admission under the Agreement's expedited procedures correspond to existing INA nonimmigrant and related classifications.

To provide for the admission of the first two categories, business visitors and intra-company transferees, no changes in U.S. statutes are required. Limited technical changes are needed to provide for the admission of traders and investors and professionals. Legislation is also required to implement article 14.3(2) of the Agreement regarding labor disputes.

Traders and Investors

Under Section B of Annex 14.3 of the Agreement, citizens of Singapore are eligible for temporary entry as traders and investors. This category provides for admission under requirements identical to those governing admission under INA § 101(a)(15)(E) (8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(E)), which permits entry for persons to carry on substantial trade in goods or services or to develop and direct investment operations.

Section 101(a)(15)(E) currently conditions admission into the United States upon authorization pursuant to a treaty of commerce and navigation. Since the Agreement is not a treaty of commerce and navigation, and no such treaty exists between the United States and Singapore, legislation is necessary to accord treaty trader and investor status to Singaporean citizens qualifying for entry under Section B.

Section 401 of the draft legislation would not have amended section 101(a)(15)(E). Instead, it relied on a mechanism similar to that provided in § 341(a) of the North American Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act, which in turn was based upon the Act of June 18, 1954 (68 Stat. 264, 8 U.S.C. § 1184(a)). The Act of June 18, 1954 conferred treaty trader and investor status upon nationals of the Philippines on a reciprocal basis secured by an agreement entered into by the President of the United States and the President of the Philippines.

Professionals

Section 402(a) of the draft bill would have amended § 101(a)(15) of the INA (8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)), which defines categories of persons entitled to enter the United States as nonimmigrants. Section 402(a) of the draft bill would have inserted a new subparagraph (W) at the end of INA § 101(a)(15). Subparagraph (W) would have established a new category of aliens entitled to enter the United States temporarily as nonimmigrants. These aliens would have been citizens of countries with which the United States has entered into free trade agreements and who sought to come to the United States temporarily to engage in business activities at the professional level. Entry into the United States under subparagraph (W) would have been subject to regulations issued by the Secretary of Homeland Security implementing numerical limitations provided for in the applicable agreement, as set forth in new paragraph (8) of INA § 214(g), as added by the bill. The Department of Labor would have issued regulations governing temporary entry of professionals under this proposed provision of law. This amendment to the INA would have implemented Section D of Annex 14.3 of the Agreement.

New INA § 101(a)(15)(W) also would have provided for the entry of spouses and children accompanying or following to join business persons entering under this category. The purpose of this provision was to grant express authorization for current Immigration and Naturalization Service practice, which is to admit such persons, but not allow them to be employed in the United States unless they independently met all applicable INA requirements.

Persons seeking temporary entry into the United States under § 101(a)(15)(W) would have been:

- considered to be seeking nonimmigrant status;
- subject to general requirements relating to admission of nonimmigrants, including those pertaining to the issuance of entry documents and the presumption set out in INA § 214(b) (8 U.S.C. § 1184(b)); and
- accorded nonimmigrant status on admission.

It should be noted that while there are many similarities in the way professionals would have been treated under § 101(a)(15)(W) of the INA, as proposed by the draft bill and the way H-IB professionals are treated, a determination of admissibility under subparagraph (W) would have neither foreclosed nor established eligibility for entry as an H-1B professional. Further, § 101(a)(15)(W) would not have authorized a professional to establish a business or practice in the United States in which the professional will be self-employed.

Numerical Limitations

Paragraph six of Section D of Annex 14.3 of the Agreement permits the United States to establish an annual numerical limit on temporary entries under the Agreement of Singaporean professionals. Under the proposed new paragraph (8) of INA § 214(g), that would have been added by § 402(a) of the bill, the Secretary of Homeland Security will issue regulations establishing an annual limit of up to 5,400 new temporary entry applications from Singaporean professionals, as provided in Appendix 14.3(D)(6) of the Agreement.

Labor Attestations

Under § (D)(5) of Annex 14.3 of the Agreement, the United States may require that an attestation of compliance with labor and immigration laws be made a condition for the temporary entry of Singaporean professionals. This provision allows U.S. labor and immigration officials to ensure that U.S. employers are not hiring Singaporean professionals as a way to put pressure on U.S. employees to accept lower wages or less favorable terms and conditions of employment.

Section 402(b) of the draft legislation would have implemented the attestation requirement under the Agreement. Section 402(b) of the draft bill would have amended § 212 of the INA (8 U.S.C. § 1182) by adding a new subsection (s) to the end of that section. INA § 212(s)(1), which would have been added by § 402(b) of the bill, required a U.S. employer seeking a temporary entry visa for a Singaporean professional to file an attestation with the Secretary of Labor. The attestation would have consisted of four core elements similar to those required for attestations under the "H-1B" visa program. See 8 U.S.C. § 1182(n)(1)(A)–(C). Thus, an employer would have attested that:

- It would pay the employee the higher of: (a) the actual wage paid to all other individuals with similar experience and qualifications for the specific employment in question, or (b) the prevailing wage level for the occupational classification in the area of employment;

- It would provide working conditions for the employee that would not adversely affect the working conditions of workers similarly employed;
- There was no strike or lockout in the course of a labor dispute in the occupational classification at the place of employment;
- The employer had provided notice of its attestation to its employees' bargaining representative in the occupational classification in the area for which the employee was sought or, absent such a representative, has otherwise notified its employees.

The remainder of the proposed new INA § 212(s) contained provisions for enforcing the labor attestation requirement. Like the contents of the attestation itself, the enforcement requirements were based on requirements under the "H-1B" visa program. INA § 212(s)(2)(A) required an employer to make copies of labor attestations (and such accompanying documents as are necessary) available for public examination at the employer's principal place of business or worksite. INA § 212(s)(2)(B) required the Secretary of Labor to compile a list of all labor attestations filed including, with respect to each attestation, the wage rate, number of alien professionals sought for employment, period of intended employment, and date of need. INA § 212(s)(2)(C) provided that the Secretary of Labor would accept a labor attestation within 7 days of filing and issue the certification necessary for an alien to enter the United States as a nonimmigrant under INA § 101(a)(15)(W), unless the attestation was incomplete or obviously inaccurate.

INA § 212(s)(3)(A) required the Secretary of Labor to establish a process for the receipt, investigation, and disposition of complaints respecting an employer's failure to meet a condition specified in a labor attestation or an employer's misrepresentation of material facts in such an attestation. Section 212(s)(3) also set forth penalties that may be imposed for violation of the labor attestation requirements, including monetary fines and denial of applications for visas under INA section 101(a)(15)(W) for specified periods. INA § 212(s)(4) defined certain terms used in INA § 212(s).

Labor Disputes

Article 14.3(2) of the Agreement establishes an important safeguard for the domestic labor forces of the United States and Singapore, respectively. It permits either government to refuse to issue an immigration document authorizing employment where the temporary entry of a business person might affect adversely the settlement of a labor dispute or the employment of a person involved in such dispute. Article 14.3(2) thus allows the United States to deny temporary entry to a Singaporean business person whose activities in the United States require employment authorization if admission might interfere with an ongoing labor dispute. If the United States invokes article 14.3(2), it must inform the business person in writing of the reasons for its action and notify Singapore.

Section 403 of the draft bill implemented article 14.3(2) of the Agreement by amending INA § 214(j) (8 U.S.C. § 1184(j)), designating current subsection (j) as paragraph (1) and inserting a new paragraph (2). New paragraph (2) of INA § 214(j) provided authority to refuse nonimmigrant classification under specified circumstances to a Singaporean business person seeking to enter the United States pursuant to the Agreement. In particular, nonimmigrant would have been refused if there was a strike or lockout affecting the relevant occupational classification at the Singaporean business person's place of employment or intended place of employment in the United States, unless that person established, pursuant to regulations issued by the Secretary of Homeland Security after consultations with the Secretary of Labor, that the business person's entry would not have adversely affected the settlement of the strike or lockout or the employment of any person involved in the strike or lockout.

New paragraph (2) also required the provision of notice to the affected Singaporean business persons and to Singapore of a determination to deny nonimmigrant classification, as required under article 14.3(3) of the Agreement. INA § 214(j)(2) as inserted by the draft legislation applies only to requests for temporary entry by traders and investors, intra-company transferees, and professionals—i.e., the categories of nonimmigrants that require employment authorization under U.S. law (corresponding to Sections B, C, and D of Annex 14.3 of the Agreement). Employment in the U.S. labor market would not have been permitted for business visitors, as defined in INA § 101(a)(15)(B) (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(15)(B)) (corresponding to Section A of Annex 14.3 of the Agreement); violations of status under that provision that involve labor disputes are fully redressable under existing law.

Section 214(j)(2) would have been similar to existing INA provisions that prohibit admission in certain circumstances where interference with a labor dispute may result. For example, under INA § 212(n)(1)(B) (8 U.S.C. § 1182(n)(1)(B)), the U.S. employer sponsoring an alien for admission must certify that there is no strike or lockout in the occupational classification at the place of employment. Additionally, § 214(j)(2) would have supplemented INA § 237(a)(1)(C) (8 U.S.C. 1227(a)(1)(C)) and related INA provisions that now authorize deportation of an alien admitted under a particular nonimmigrant category if the alien ceased to perform the type of work permitted under that category or misrepresented the nature of the work at the time of admission. The Department of Labor would have provided strike certifications to the Department of Homeland Security, as it has provided them to the Immigration and Naturalization Service under existing provisions, pursuant to 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(17).

Administrative Action

Singapore would have been added to the list of countries, maintained by the Department of State, whose citizens are eligible for treaty trader and treaty investor status under INA § 101(a)(15)(E). With respect to professionals provided for under Section D of Annex 14.3 of the Agreement, in all cases where a state license is required to engage in a particular activity in the United States, such professionals would have been required to obtain the appropriate state license. Pursuant to INA § 101(a)(15)(W) as proposed by section 402(a) of the draft bill, the Secretary of Homeland Security would have issued regulations implementing the numerical limits set forth in Appendix 14.3(D)(6) of the Agreement. The Secretary of Labor would have issued regulations implementing the labor attestation provisions in new subsection (s) of INA § 212. The administrative agencies responsible for administering the other amendments to the INA described above would have promulgated regulations to implement those amendments.

Pre-Introduction "Mock Markup" of U.S.-Singapore FTA Implementing Legislation and Committee Amendments Incorporated Into H.R. 2739

On July 10, 2003, the Committee held a pre-introduction "mock markup" of draft implementing legislation submitted by the Administration to the Committee. The Committee's consideration of this draft legislation was limited to title IV of the draft implementing legislation. During this meeting, Chairman Sensenbrenner, Ranking Member Conyers, and several Members of the Committee made it clear that they opposed the inclusion of immigration provisions in H.R. 2739 and that they would not support any future FTA that included substantive changes to United States immigration law.

Judiciary Committee Amendments to Draft Implementing Legislation

The Committee reported several amendments to the immigration provisions by voice vote. The amendments were reflected in H.R. 2739.

First, the Committee reported an amendment by Representative King to transfer the new "W" professional worker visa category for citizens of Singapore to section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b)(1) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, rather than 101(a)(15)(W) as provided for in the draft implementing legislation. Representative King's amendment also ensured that in future years, the national H-1B visa cap will be reduced in two situations. First, the number of H-1B visas available in a fiscal year will be reduced by the number of Singaporean citizens granted extensions of H-1B1 status in that fiscal year after having previously been granted five or more consecutive prior extensions. Second, the number of H-1B visas available in a fiscal year will be reduced by the number of H-1B1 visas allocated (5,400 for citizens of Singapore). However, if at the end of a fiscal year, the 6,800 slots reserved for citizens of Singapore have not been exhausted, the number of H-1B visas available for that fiscal year will be adjusted upwards by the number of unused Singapore visas. These newly available H-1B visas may be issued within the first 45 days of the next fiscal year to aliens who had applied for such visas during the fiscal year for which the adjustment was made.

The Committee also reported an amendment offered by Representatives Berman and Conyers requiring that an application for every second extension for an H-1B1 visa be accompanied by a new employer attestation. This will have the effect of requiring the employer to update the prevailing wage determination at such time. The amendment also requires that an employer pay a fee when H-1B1 status is initially granted and after every second extension of that status. The fee shall be the same as the fee an employer must pay when petitioning for an H-1B visa. However, if no fee is being assessed under the H-1B program, no fee shall be imposed under the H-1B1 program.

Finally, the implementing legislation now clarifies that an employer generally cannot sponsor an alien for an E, L, or H-1B1 visa if there is any labor dispute occurring in the occupational classification at the place of employment, regardless of whether the labor dispute is classified as a strike or lockout. In this regard, worker protections in H.R. 2739 are broader than those contained in the H-1B visa category.

HEARINGS

No hearings were held on H.R. 2739 before the Committee on the Judiciary.

COMMITTEE CONSIDERATION

On July 16, 2003, the Committee met in open session and ordered favorably reported the bill H.R. 2739 without amendment by voice vote, a quorum being present.

VOTE OF THE COMMITTEE

In compliance with clause 3(b) of Rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee notes that there were no recorded votes during the committee consideration of H.R. 2739.

COMMITTEE OVERSIGHT FINDINGS

In compliance with clause 3(c)(1) of Rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee reports that the findings and recommendations of the Committee, based on oversight activities under clause 2(b)(1) of Rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives, are incorporated in the descriptive portions of this report.

NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY AND TAX EXPENDITURES

Clause 3(c)(2) of Rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives is inapplicable because this legislation does not provide new budgetary authority or increased tax expenditures.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE

In compliance with clause 3(c)(3) of Rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee sets forth, with respect to the bill, H.R. 2739, the following estimate and comparison prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974:

Ranking Member

H.R. 2739—A bill to implement the United States-Singapore Free Trade Agreement.

SUMMARY

H.R. 2739 would approve the free trade agreement (FTA) between the government of the United States and the government of Singapore that was entered into on May 6, 2003. It would provide for tariff reductions and other changes in law related to implementation of the agreement, such as provisions dealing with dispute settlement, rules of origin, and safeguard measures for textile and apparel industries. The bill also would allow the temporary entry of certain business persons into the United States.

The Congressional Budget Office estimates that enacting the bill would reduce revenues by $55 million in 2004, by $410 million over the 2004–2008 period, and by about $1 billion over the 2004–2013 period, net of income and payroll tax offsets. The bill would not have a significant effect on direct spending or spending subject to appropriation. CBO has determined that H.R. 2739 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) and would not affect the budgets of State, local, or tribal governments.

ESTIMATED COST TO THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

	By Fiscal Year, in Millions of Dollars
	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008
CHANGES IN REVENUES [a]
Estimated Revenues	-55	-80	-86	-92	-98

a. H.R. 2739 also would affect direct spending and discretionary spending, but the amounts of those changes would be less than $500,000 a year.

BASIS OF ESTIMATE

Revenues

Under the United States-Singapore agreement, all tariffs on U.S. imports from Singapore would be phased out over time. The tariffs would be phased out for individual products at varying rates according to one of several different timetables ranging from immediate elimination to partial elimination over 10 years. According to the U.S. International Trade Commission, the U.S. collected $88 million in customs duties in 2002 on about $14.1 billion of imports from Singapore. Of the imports, only $1.3 billion faced non-zero tariff rates. These dutiable imports from Singapore consist mostly of certain electrical machinery, knitted or crocheted apparel, mineral fuels and oils, surgical and precision instruments, and certain nuclear reactor components. Based on these data, CBO estimates that phasing out tariff rates as outlined in the U.S.-Singapore agreement would reduce revenues by $55 million in 2004, by $410 million over the 2004–2008 period, and by about $1 billion over the 2004–2013 period, net of income and payroll tax offsets.

This estimate includes the effects of increased imports from Singapore that would result from the reduced prices of imported products in the United States, reflecting the lower tariff rates. It is likely that some of the increase in U.S. imports from Singapore would displace imports from other countries. In the absence of specific data on the extent of this substitution effect, CBO assumes that an amount equal to one-half of the increase in U.S. imports from Singapore would displace imports from other countries.

Based on current law, H.R. 2739 would not provide for the assessment of civil monetary penalties on employers for violations of the labor attestation process with respect to certain workers from Singapore. However, if H.R. 2738, a bill to implement the United States-Chile FTA, were to be enacted prior to this bill, H.R. 2739 would allow the Secretary of Labor to assess such penalties. CBO expects that any additional revenues collected as a result would amount to less than $500,000 in any year.

Direct Spending

Title IV of H.R. 2739 would permit certain traders and investors from Singapore, and their spouses and children, to enter the United States as nonimmigrants. The Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services (BCIS) would charge fees of about $100 to provide nonimmigrant visas, so CBO estimates that the agency could collect several million dollars annually in offsetting receipts (a credit against direct spending). The agency is authorized to spend such fees without further appropriation, so the net impact on BCIS spending would not be significant.

However, if H.R. 2738 (a bill to implement the United States-Chile FTA) were to be enacted prior to this bill, title IV would establish a new nonimmigrant category for certain professional workers from Singapore. The legislation would limit the number of annual entries under this category to 5,400, plus spouses and children. The BCIS would charge fees of about $100 to provide nonimmigrant visas, so CBO estimates that the agency would collect less than $3 million annually in offsetting receipts. Again, the agency is authorized to spend such fees without further appropriation, so the net impact on BCIS spending would not be significant.

Under current law, the Department of State also collects $100 application fee for nonimmigrant visas. These collections are spent on border security and consular functions. CBO estimates that the net budgetary impact would be less than $500,000 a year.

Spending Subject to Appropriation

Title I of H.R. 2739 would authorize the appropriation the necessary funds for the Department of Commerce to pay the United States' share of the costs of the dispute settlement procedures established by the agreement. Based on information from the agency, CBO estimates that implementing this provision would cost $100,000 in 2004, and $250,000 in each of the following years, subject to the availability of appropriated funds.

Title III would require the International Trade Commission (ITC) to investigate claims of injury to domestic industries as a result of the FTA. The ITC would have 120 days to determine whether a domestic industry has been injured, and if so, would recommend the necessary amount of import relief. The ITC would also submit a report on its determination to the President. According to the ITC, similar FTAs have resulted in only a handful of cases each year, at an average cost of about $200,000 per investigation. Based on this information, CBO estimates the bill would have no significant effect on spending subject to appropriation.

SUMMARY OF EFFECT ON REVENUES AND DIRECT SPENDING

CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY STATEMENT

Pursuant to clause 3(d)(1) of Rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee finds the authority for this legislation in article I, section 8 of the Constitution.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS AND DISCUSSION

The following section-by-section analysis describes the sections of H.R. 2739 within the rule X jurisdiction of the Committee on the Judiciary.

TITLE IV. TEMPORARY ENTRY FOR BUSINESS PERSONS

It should be emphasized that all grounds of inadmissibility found at section 212(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA), as the section currently exists or as it may be modified in the future, shall apply to any applicant for admission pursuant to title IV.

Sec. 401. Nonimmigrant Traders and Investors.

"E" nonimmigrant visas are available for treaty traders and investors. A visa is available to an alien who:

> is entitled to enter the United States under and in pursuance of the provisions of a treaty of commerce and navigation between the United States and the foreign state of which he is a national, and the spouse and children of any such alien if accompanying or following to join him: i) solely to carry on substantial trade, including trade in services or trade in technology, principally between the United States and the foreign state of which he is a national, or ii) solely to develop and direct the operations of an enterprise in which he has invested . . . a substantial amount of capital[.]
> INA section 101(a)(15)(E).

Section 401 of the bill provides that nationals of Singapore (along with spouses and children, if accompanying or following to join), may, if otherwise eligible for a visa and admissible into the U.S., be considered to be classifiable as "E" nonimmigrants if entering solely for a purpose specified in clause (i) or (ii) of INA section 101(a)(15)(E). H.R. 2739 contains a similar provision for nationals of Singapore.

Sec. 402. Nonimmigrant Professionals.

Section 402 of the bill makes nationals of Singapore eligible for the the "H-1B1 nonimmigrant visa program created by H.R. 2738 to implement the U.S.-Chile Free Trade Agreement. The total number of approvals of initial applications for admission by Singaporeans is 5,400 in any fiscal year.

For a description of the H-1B1 visa program, see the accompanying Judiciary Committee Report for H.R. 2738.

The Honorable Robert B. Zoellick
Ambassador
United States Trade Representative
600 17th St., N.W.
Washington, DC 20508

Dear Ambassador Zoellick:

We have long been concerned about the practice of the Office of the United States Trade Representative of negotiating changes to the Immigration and Nationality Act with foreign countries during talks on free trade agreements. This reached its nadir with the North American Free Trade Agreement and then with 1994 General Agreement on Trade in Services. In NAFTA, the USTR negotiated a major new professional worker visa category for Mexicans and Canadians that contains few of the safeguards for American workers built into the longstanding H-1B visa category available to nationals of all countries. Not only did this process usurp Congress' Constitutional role in creating immigration law, but it forever bans Congress from making modifications to, or repealing, this new visa program. Even worse, in GATS, the USTR negotiated standards for the H-1B program itself, permanently barring Congress from making many modifications to the program. While you were of course not responsible for these acts by previous Administrations and previous Trade Representatives, we want to urge you in the strongest possible terms to never again agree to negotiate immigration provisions in bilateral or multilateral free trade agreements.

Article I, section 8, clause 4 of the Constitution provides that Congress shall have power to "establish an uniform Rule of Naturalization." The Supreme Court has long found that this provision of the Constitution grants Congress plenary power over immigration policy. As the Court found in Galvan v. Press, 347 U.S. 522, 531 (1954), "the formulation of policies [pertaining to the entry of aliens and their right to remain here] is entrusted exclusively to Congress has become about as firmly imbedded in the legislative and judicial tissues of our body politic as any aspect of our government." And, as the Court found in Kleindienst v. Mandel, 408 U.S. 753, 766 (1972) (quoting Boutilier v. INS, 387 U.S. 118, 123 (1967)), "[t]he Court without exception has sustained Congress' 'plenary power to make rules for the admission of aliens and to exclude those who possess those characteristics which Congress has forbidden.'"

We appreciate the increased level of consultation with Congress that you have provided during your term over that provided by previous Trade Representatives, especially regarding the negotiations over the Chile and Singapore Free Trade Agreements. However, in the future, even heightened consultation will not alter our fundamental opposition to the inclusion of immigration matters in free trade agreements. First, such inclusion degrades Congress' ability to exercise its plenary power. Second, fast track authority takes away Congress' ability to subject immigration proposals to the debate and amendment process so vital to creating sound immigration law. And third, immigration provisions in free trade agreements cannot later be modified by Congress without placing the United States in violation of those agreements, despite fundamentally changed national circumstances. These factors seriously impair our ability to do the jobs we were elected to do – to legislate an immigration law that is in the best interests of our constituents.

Therefore, we urge you to no longer entertain proposals to modify U.S. immigration law in future free trade agreements. We also urge you to make this position clear to the foreign governments you are currently negotiating free trade agreements with, including but not limited to the negotiations pursuant to the Doha round of the General Agreement on Trade in Services, the proposed Central American Free Trade Agreement, and the proposed free trade accord with Australia.

Should immigration provisions be included in future free trade agreements, those of us who have supported trade promotion authority and free trade agreements in the past will be put in the troubling position of having to consider opposing future extensions of trade promotion authority or future trade agreements themselves. Of course, whenever the Administration would like to propose legislative changes to the Immigration and Nationality Act, we would be happy to give the proposals the most serious consideration through the regular legislative process.

We thank you for continuing to consult with us and look forward to working with you and the President to craft the best trade policy for America.

Sincerely,

F. JAMES SENSENBRENNER, JR.

The Honorable Robert B. Zoellick
Ambassador
United States Trade Representative
600 17th St., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20508

Dear Ambassador Zoellick:

The Constitution grants the legislative branch of the federal government plenary power over immigration law. As the Supreme Court ruled in Galvan v. Press, 347 U.S. 522, 531 (1954), "that the formulation of [immigration] policies is entrusted exclusively to Congress has become about as firmly imbedded in the legislative and judicial tissues of our body politic as any aspect of our government." The United States Trade Representative's practice of proposing new immigration law in the context of bilateral or multilateral trade negotiations cannot be reconciled with Congress's constitutional prerogative. Even worse, when combined with the grant of "fast track" or "trade promotion authority" eliminating the legislature's ability to amend such proposals, USTR's practice has effectively stolen this plenary power away from Congress. We cannot allow this to continue and must thus insist that you never again agree to include immigration provisions in trade agreements.

It would be unfair and inaccurate to allege that this practice began with your tenure. The most grievous indignities to Article I, section 8, clause 4 of the Constitution took place during the negotiations over the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) and the General Agreement on Trade in Services (GATS). In NAFTA, the Clinton Administration USTR agreed to a limitless professional worker visa category containing not even a prevailing wage requirement. In GATS, the USTR divested from future Congresses the ability to make possibly crucial modifications to the H-1B visa program. Given the outrage many of our constituents have expressed over abuses of the H-1B program, we will not soon forget this emasculation.

However, you did recently agree to a new professional worker visa category in negotiating free trade agreements with the governments of Chile and Singapore. Not only was this not your prerogative, but it seems obvious that the Chile and Singapore agreements were going to be used as precedent for future trade agreements. We must insist in the strongest of terms that you do not agree to include immigration provisions in future free trade agreements. We must insist with equal fervor that you do not agree to any additional immigration provisions in any multilateral trade negotiations, including but not limited to the ongoing Doha Round of the General Agreement on Trade in Services. "Temporary entry" of an alien for whatever purpose is just as much within the confines of Congress's plenary power as is permanent residence or naturalization.

Many of us have supported trade promotion authority in the past. However, without a clear statement from the USTR that immigration will not be a part of future trade agreements, our support for future extensions of this authority will be put in doubt. And we would of course find it very difficult to support any future trade agreements that contain any immigration provisions.

W. Todd Akin

MARKUP TRANSCRIPT

BUSINESS MEETING

WEDNESDAY, JULY 16, 2003

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY,
Washington, DC.

The Committee met, pursuant to notice, at 10:04 a.m., in Room 2141, Rayburn House Office Building, Hon. F. James Sensenbrenner, Jr., [Chairman of the Committee] presiding.

[Intervening business.]

Chairman SENSENBRENNER. Pursuant to notice, I now call up H.R. 2739, the implementing legislation for the U.S.-Singapore Free Trade Agreement and move its favorable recommendation to the House.

The same explanation that I have previously given with respect to the Chile legislation applies to the Singapore legislation, and again only the immigration provisions of the agreement require implementing legislation.

Without objection, H.R. 2739 will be considered as read.

[The bill, H.R. 2739, follows:]

I

To the extent business confidential information is provided, a nonconfidential version of the information shall also be provided, in which the business confidential information is summarized or, if necessary, deleted.

Subtitle C—Cases Under Title II of the Trade Act of 1974

SEC. 331. FINDINGS AND ACTION ON GOODS FROM SINGAPORE.

(a) EFFECT OF IMPORTS.—If, in any investigation initiated under chapter 1 of title II of the Trade Act of 1974, the Commission makes an affirmative determination (or a determination which the President may treat as an affirmative determination under such chapter by reason of section 330(d) of the Tariff Act of 1930), the Commission shall also find (and report to the President at the time such injury determination is submitted to the President) whether imports of the article from Singapore are a substantial cause of serious injury or threat thereof.

(b) PRESIDENTIAL DETERMINATION REGARDING SINGAPOREAN IMPORTS.—In determining the nature and extent of action to be taken under chapter 1 of title II of the Trade Act of 1974, the President shall determine whether imports from Singapore are a substantial cause of the serious injury or threat thereof found by the Commission and, if such determination is in the negative, may exclude from such action imports from Singapore.

Chairman SENSENBRENNER. Without objection, the transcript of the mock markup held on this legislation last week will be inserted into the record following opening statements.

And I will not use any additional time to repeat myself.

[The prepared statement of Mr. Sensenbrenner follows:]

PREPARED STATEMENT OF THE HONORABLE F. JAMES SENSENBRENNER, JR., A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM THE STATE OF WISCONSIN

H.R. 2738, the "U.S.-Chile Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act," and H.R. 2739, the "U.S.-Singapore Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act" were referred to the Judiciary Committee for consideration of provisions that fall within the Committee's jurisdiction.

As we were all reminded last week, Trade Promotion Authority (TPA) requires the Administration to actively consult with Congress when initiating, negotiating, and implementing trade agreements. TPA also provides that legislation to implement free trade agreements may not be amended by committees of jurisdiction and may only receive an up or down vote on the floor of the House.

The U.S.-Chile and U.S.-Singapore Free Trade Agreements contain several issues within the purview of this Committee. Both agreements contain competition clauses that ensure antitrust laws are applied in a neutral, transparent, nondiscriminatory manner while safeguarding basic procedural rights. The agreements also contain robust intellectual property protections, requiring the governments of Chile and Singapore to take affirmative steps to eradicate the piracy of trademarks, patents, satellite television signals, and other forms of intellectual property.

While the antitrust and intellectual property provisions within these agreements are critical, they do not require any substantive changes to U.S. law. As a result, our consideration of H.R. 2738 and H.R. 2739 must be confined to Title IV of each bill, which pertains to "Temporary Entry of Business Persons."

I have long expressed concern about substantive changes to U.S. law contained in free trade agreements. Before passage of Trade Promotion Authority, immigration provisions were included in earlier free trade agreements such as NAFTA, without any consultation with this Committee. This practice unfortunately created precedent for subsequent trade agreements, such as those we consider today, and immigration provisions were included in the Chile and Singapore Free Trade Agreements before passage of TPA last year.

At last week's mock markup, Members of this Committee spoke with a united bipartisan voice that immigration provisions in future free trade agreements will not receive the support of this Committee. In addition, the implementing legislation we consider today contains a number of modifications recommended by the Committee at last week's mock markup.

While the draft implementing legislation created a separate visa category for skilled workers from Chile and Singapore, the bills we consider today amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to ensure that these visas—6,800 in total—are deducted from the national H-1B cap when they are issued or when a Chilean or Singaporean citizen is granted an extension after five or more consecutive prior extensions.

In addition, the implementing legislation now provides that after every second extension of H-1B1 status for a citizen of Chile or Singapore, an application for a further extension must be accompanied by a new employer attestation. This will have the effect of requiring the employer to update the prevailing wage determination at such time.

Moreover, the legislation provides that an employer will have to pay a fee in order for an alien to be initially granted H-1B1 status and after every second extension of that status. The fee shall be the same as the fee an employer must pay when petitioning for an H-1B visa. However, if no fee is being assessed under the H-1B program, no fee shall be imposed under the H-1B1 program.

Finally, the legislation now clarifies that an employer generally cannot sponsor an alien for an E, L, or H-1B1 visa if there is any labor dispute occurring in the occupational classification at the place of employment, regardless of whether the labor dispute is classified as a strike or lockout. In this regard, the implementing language provides greater worker protections than those contained in the current H-1B program.

The legislation we consider today is a considerable improvement over the draft implementing legislation we considered last week. The Committee's bipartisan commitment to ensuring that our recommendations were incorporated into these bills reaffirms the constitutional prerogative of Congress and this Committee's commitment to ensuring that future free trade agreements are not used to substantively alter United States immigration law. It is my hope and expectation that our actions over the last week will not go unnoticed by this and future Administrations.

These implementing bills as the result of extensive negotiation and cooperation between the USTR and Members of this Committee, both majority and minority. They represent true bipartisan compromise. Several concerns of the minority were addressed and are represented in the legislation before us. In recognition of the diligent work by the Committee and the USTR to improve the implementing legislation, and in light of the fact that our limited jurisdictional referral requires the Committee to consider only provisions within our jurisdiction, I would urge all members who support our work on the immigration sections in Title IV of both bills to support reporting this legislation today. For members who do not support portions of the implementing legislation outside of this Committee's jurisdiction or the underlying trade agreements themselves, I encourage you to vote to report the legislation and then submit supplemental views to the committee report outlining your position on the broader implementing legislation.

I now recognize the Ranking Member for his remarks.

[The prepared statement of Ms. Jackson Lee follows:]

PREPARED STATEMENT OF THE HONORABLE SHEILA JACKSON LEE, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM THE STATE OF TEXAS

I have serious reservations about the actions the U.S. Trade Representative (USTR) has taken with respect to the temporary entry provisions in the Chile and Singapore Free Trade Agreements. In my opinion, they have overstepped their bounds and usurped this Committee's jurisdiction. The negotiating objectives that Congress laid out for USTR in the Trade Act of 2002 (TPA) do not include even one word on temporary entry. There is no specific authority in TPA to negotiate new visa categories or impose new requirements on our temporary entry system, yet that is exactly what USTR has done in the Chile and Singapore FTAs.

The Singapore and Chile FTAs create a new visa classification for the temporary admission of nonimmigrant professionals that is similar in many respects to the existing H-1B nonimmigrant classification. The new nonimmigrant visa classification, however, would differ from the existing H-1B program in significant ways.

Both agreements include caps on the number of professionals that can be granted entry each year (1,400 for Chile and 5,400 for Singapore).

The provisions for the new nonimmigrant visa permit an unlimited number of extensions in 1-year increments. This makes it possible to transform a temporary entry program into a permanent program. In effect, employers would have the power to keep permanent workers in a temporary legal status. In contrast, under the H-1B program, workers are granted a three-year visa that can be renewed only once.

The Labor Certification Attestation (LCA) is one of the few safeguards we have in our H-1B system for ensuring that employers do not abuse temporary workers to undermine the domestic labor market. The implementing legislation contains some, but not all, of the LCA requirements that apply in our H-1B programs.

The implementing legislation completely omits the category of H-1B dependent employers and the additional LCA requirements that apply to them. H-1B dependent employers are required to attest that new entrants will not displace U.S. workers and demonstrate that they have tried to recruit U.S. workers. The implementing legislation should have a similar provision.

In addition, the H-1B program authorizes the Secretary of Labor to initiate her own investigations and enforcement proceedings based on credible information that an employer is violating the rules of the H-1B program. No such authority is granted in the administration of the Chile and Singapore visa programs.

The Singapore and Chile FTAs require permanent changes to our immigration system, but for now these changes are limited to two countries. Unfortunately, we may see these programs expanded to dozens of additional countries in future free trade agreements. The administration is currently negotiating additional FTAs with Australia, Morocco, five countries in Southern Africa, five countries in Central America, and the 34 countries of the Western Hemisphere.

Immigration policy is a sensitive, political matter. Changes in immigration policy have traditionally been the result of intense, open negotiations between workers, employers, immigration advocates, and Members of Congress. These issues simply do not belong in fast-tracked trade agreements negotiated by executive agencies.

Chairman SENSENBRENNER. Are there further opening statements?

If not, without objection, the previous question is ordered on reporting the bill because a reporting quorum is not present.

[Intervening business.]

A reporting quorum being present, the unfinished business is the question on the motion to report favorably the bill H.R. 2739, upon which the previous question was ordered.

Those in favor will say aye.

Opposed, no.

The ayes appear to have it, the ayes have it, the motion to report favorably is agreed to and all Members will be given 2 days, as provided by House rules, in which to submit additional dissenting supplemental or minority views.

MOCK MARKUP TRANSCRIPT

BUSINESS MEETING

THURSDAY, JULY 10, 2003

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY,
Washington, DC.

The Committee met, pursuant to notice, at 10:49 a.m., in Room 2141, Rayburn House Office Building, Hon. F. James Sensenbrenner, Jr., [Chairman of the Committee] presiding.

[Intervening business.]

Chairman SENSENBRENNER. The next item on the agenda is the consideration of the draft implementing legislation for the U.S.-Singapore Free Trade Agreement, and without objection, the draft implementing legislation will be considered as read and open for amendment at any point.

[The legislation follows:]

Draft Implementing Legislation for the United States-Singapore Free Trade Agreement

TITLE IV—TEMPORARY ENTRY OF BUSINESS PERSONS.

SEC. 401. NONIMMIGRANT TRADERS AND INVESTORS.

Upon a basis of reciprocity secured by the Agreement, an alien who is a national of Singapore (and any spouse or child (as defined in section 101(b)(1) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(b)(1)) of such alien, if accompanying or following to join the alien) may, if otherwise eligible for a visa and if otherwise admissible into the United States under the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101 et seq.), be considered to be classifiable as a nonimmigrant under section 101(a)(15)(E) of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(15)(E)) if entering solely for a purpose specified in clause (i) or (ii) of such section 101(a)(15)(E). For purposes of this section, the term ''national'' has the meaning given such term in Annex 1A of the Agreement.

SEC. 402. NONIMMIGRANT PROFESSIONALS.

Section 214(g)(8) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1184(g)(8)) is amended by amending subparagraphs (A) and (B) to read as follows:

''(8)(A) The agreements referred to in section 101(a)(15)(W)(i)(I) are—

''(i) the United States-Chile Free Trade Agreement; and

''(ii) the United States-Singpore Free Trade Agreement.

''(B) The Secretary of Homeland Security shall establish annual numerical limits on approvals of initial applications by aliens for admission under section 101(a)(15)(W)(i), which shall not exceed—

''(i) 1,400 for nationals of Chile (as defined in article 14.9 of the United States-Chile Free Trade Agreement); and

''(ii) 5,400 for nationals of Singapore (as defined in Annex 1A of the United States-Singpore Free Trade Agreement).''.

Chairman SENSENBRENNER. The gentleman from Iowa, Mr. King, has to offer his amendment as amended by Mr. Conyers and Mr. Berman's amendment as modified. Do you do so?

Mr. KING. Mr. Chairman, I do so. I'm not aware that that amendment is printed and ready to be presented to the Committee. I could speak to the issue.

Chairman SENSENBRENNER. It's the same amendment.

[The amendments follows:]

[Whereupon, at 12:08 p.m., the Committee was adjourned.]

MINORITY VIEWS

We write these views to explain that, as a general proposition we oppose efforts by the Administration to distort our immigration laws by offering new visa categories to specific nations as a bargaining chip in trade negotiations. This should not have been done as part of the North American Free Trade Agreement and it should not have been done as part of the Singapore Free Trade Agreement.

We would note that Article I, section 8, clause 4 of the Constitution provides that Congress shall have the power to "establish an uniform Rule of Naturalization." The Supreme Court has long found that this provision of the Constitution grants Congress plenary power over immigration policy.[1] Moreover, the Court has found that "the formulation of policies [pertaining to the entry of aliens and their right to remain here] is entrusted exclusively to Congress has become firmly imbedded in the legislative and judicial tissues of our body politics as any aspect of our government."[2] Nonetheless the Administration has negotiated a new visa program in the U.S.-Singapore FTA; usurping Congress' clear constitutional role in creating immigration law.

Having stated that, we do appreciate the efforts of the Majority to work with us in improving the implementing language with regard to immigration as best we could, given the unfortunate constraints of the underlying agreement. For example, the initial draft of the legislation we received contained several major loopholes and flaws. It would have created 5,400 new visas for persons to come into this country from Singapore. There was no requirement that employers pay any fees when such temporary workers were brought in. There was no requirement that employers certify that they were unable to find American workers before they hired these foreign workers. And there was no real limitation on the ability of these individuals to stay in this country indefinitely.

Many of these problems were mitigated as a result of this Committee's input in the process. We enacted language which would insure that several H-1b requirements apply to these new visas.[3] We also enacted a requirement that the new visas not go beyond the current H-1b limits.

We would note that we have a significant remaining concern that the Administration was unwilling to include in the text of the implementing legislation. First and foremost, the Singapore implementing bill provides no overall limitation on how many times professional visas can be renewed. While the implementing language

[2] Galvan v. Press, 347 U.S. 522,531(1954)

[3] Although the amount of the fee was specified, the implementing legislation fails to include the requirement in INA section 212(n)(2)(C)(vi)(II) that forbids the employer from requiring the employee to pay the fee.

included the Conyers/Berman language insuring that renewals beyond 6 years count against the overall H-1b cap, it does not include language present in the current H-1b provisions that limits authorized admission to 6 years. Thus, it is possible that employers could renew their employees' visas each and every year under the Singapore agreement, with no limits, while also bringing in new entrants to fill up the annual numerical limit for new visas. This would rob the program of its supposedly temporary nature and harm American workers.

In addition we are concerned that the implementing legislation does not contain all of the Labor Condition Application requirements that apply in the current H-1b programs. Most importantly, the implementing legislation completely omits the category of H-1b dependent employers present in existing law that requires employers to demonstrate that they have tried to recruit U.S. workers and attest that new entrants will not displace U.S. workers.[4] In addition, the implementing legislation does not grant the authority given to Secretary of Labor in the H-1b to initiate her own investigations based on credible information that the employer is violating the rules of employment of the H-1b program. USTR has argued that these provisions expire in October 1, 2003 and that should Congress extend or modify provisions of the H-1b program, it may make corresponding modifications to the amendments to the INA made by the implementing bill. However, omission of these important worker protections sets a dangerous precedent for inclusion in future agreements.

Finally, we strongly object to any notion that the U.S.-Singapore Free Trade Agreement will be used as a model for future FTAs. We have been informed by the Majority that the Administration will not seek immigration in future possible free trade agreements, such as the Central American Free Trade Agreement, and this is spelled out in the letter from Chairman Sensenbrenner and Ranking Member Conyers to Ambassador Zoellick. It is critical that the administration interpret the inherent problems in the new visa program not as a precedent for future agreements, but rather as a sign that immigration has no place in trade agreements.

[4] The implementing language also omits H-1b dependent requirement in 212(n)(2)(E) that the H-1b dependent employer not place the H-1b worker with a third employer that is displacing U.S. workers.
