

President Clinton established the National Church Arson Task Force (NCATF) in June, 1996 due to the sharp rise in the number of arsons and other acts against places of worship in early 1996. According to the NCATF Second Year Report to the President, approximately 670 investigations have been opened in connection with fires at places of worship. While the Report indicates that the number of these incidents has decreased since 1995, arsons continue to occur at places of worship.

In addition to administering the Loan Guarantee Recovery Fund authorized by the Act, HUD has established the National Rebuilding Initiative (the "NRI") to bring together as many resources as possible to aid affected places of worship. The NRI is a partnership of the National Council of Churches, the Congress of National Black Churches, and HUD. While its two partners make grants available for rebuilding, HUD guarantees private sector loans made by banks and other financial institutions for rebuilding purposes.

Although there have been reports of arson cases in the southern United States (where African-American places of worship have been disproportionately affected), the fires have not been limited to one particular geographic area. There have been arson reports in 39 states and the District of Columbia. Accordingly, HUD seeks to address the problem of rebuilding through a system of assistance that is nationwide in scope.

HUD is especially interested in identifying financial institutions that:

1. Value the HUD guarantee of rebuilding loans so as to effect a reduction in the standard interest rate charged for similar loans without the HUD guarantee; and
2. Are knowledgeable of an entity or entities willing to assist nonprofit organizations seeking rebuilding loans in preparing the financial aspect of their applications for such loans.

For purposes of this notice, the term "financial institution" means a lender which may be a bank, trust company, savings and loan association, credit union, mortgage company, or other issuer regulated by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Office of Thrift Supervision, the Credit Union Administration, or the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency. A Financial Institution may also be a Pension Fund. (See 24 CFR 573.2.)

To date, places of worship assisted in rebuilding their damaged properties have ranged in size from less than fifty congregants to as high as 1000 congregants.

Financial institutions interested in participating in the National Rebuilding Initiative Financial Consortium, should contact Tony Johnston of HUD's Office of Community Planning and Development, at the address or telephone/fax numbers listed in the FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT section of this notice.

Dated: June 9, 1999.

Cardell Cooper,

Assistant Secretary for Community Planning and Development.
