

in my 5th District of Michigan, and particularly the leadership of the Saginaw City Council and City Manager Reed Phillips. In October 1998, at the 71st annual Water Environment Federation Conference in Orlando, the City of Saginaw was presented with the Environmental Protection Agency's 1998 National Sewer Overflow Control Program Excellence Award. The award is presented for innovation and quality for their combined sewer overflow control measures.

As we in the 5th District well know, the Saginaw River is a major contributor to the health or problems in the Saginaw Bay and Lake Huron. During our communities' long history in the region, we have struggled to reverse the degradation of the river and the lake from our cities and industry. A major role in that effort lies with city officials in our area. The Saginaw City Council and Mr. Phillips have provided a cutting edge example of how we can return our environment to the safe, healthy and productive resource whose beauty has made our region one of the largest tourist attractions in the Midwest.

Combined sewer overflows are a critically important problem in our country, particularly in the Northeastern, Midwestern and North-western United States. This 19th century engineering breakthrough represents an environmental nightmare for our cities of today. Periodic heavy rainfall can lead to releases which compromise our rivers, streams, lakes and oceans.

The efforts of Mr. Phillips to make me aware of this crisis in Saginaw, Bay City and other towns in our State led me to introduce H.R. 4242, the Combined Sewer Overflow Control and Partnership Act of 1998. Only massive expenditures of limited municipal resources can solve this problem today. With Reed's help, I learned that a national grant program is essential to long term solutions to this problem.

This is why, Mr. Speaker, that the creativity and innovation of the City of Saginaw is so impressive. To gain national recognition for success in attacking a problem which seems to have no solution is truly a victory for our citizens and our environment. Instead of giving up in the face of nearly insurmountable odds, the City of Saginaw has dedicated itself to making progress, and has proven that dedication and effort can change the course of rivers.

Mr. Speaker, I ask you and our colleagues to join me today in applauding the City of Saginaw and City Manager Reed Phillips, and cherishing the environment which they so dutifully protect.

THIRD BAPTIST CHURCH TO CELEBRATE ITS 130TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. MARCY KAPTUR

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, October 9, 1998

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to give special recognition to the Third Baptist Church in Toledo, Ohio. Beginning November 11, 1998 and concluding November 15, 1998, the church will celebrate its 130th anniversary with a host of celebration activities.

I am pleased to commemorate this anniversary. This milestone is a testament to faith, to the strength of community, and to the values of family and tradition. The 130 year long journey of Third Baptist Church has only come about through the faith and perseverance of its congregants. As their lives have been made richer by their faith, so, too, has our community been made richer by the church's presence. This church in the heart of one of Toledo's oldest neighborhoods has housed generations of souls uplifted by the strength of prayer and each other as God's Word was celebrated each Sunday for 130 years.

Third Baptist Church has been a cornerstone of the community, and is strongly supported by its members. Generations worship together, in the truest sense of church and community. Third Baptist's motto is "Celebrating Our Goodly Heritage Through Worship and Praise." Its members live this testament, coming together to offer joyful songs, inspirational prayers, and deep, personal worship.

As 130 years are celebrated through several days, I know that the spirit of the church's ancestors will be felt, and they will join today's membership in the commemoration. As we look back on the past, may we also direct our vision toward the future.

TRIBUTE TO THE FARMERS' ADVANCE

HON. NICK SMITH

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, October 9, 1998

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the Farmers' Advance published in Camden, Michigan.

On October 13, 1998, the Farmers' Advance and its precursor, The Camden Advance, will have served rural readers and advertisers for 100 years.

As a farmer, I rely on the Farmers' Advance to keep me abreast of the weekly sales and prices of farm commodities, livestock and equipment. I also appreciate the excellent coverage of youth activities in 4-H and FFA shows and sales. In this rapidly changing time, the Farmers' Advance continues to chronicle and celebrate traditional farm family values through its stories and photographs.

The Camden Advance was first published in 1898. Lee Graham, publisher and editor, set the type under lamplight and printed the paper on a hand press.

In 1953, its name was changed to the Farmers' Advance. Today, the Farmers' Advance reaches readers in every county in Michigan, northern Indiana, northern Ohio, and Ontario, Canada.

I want to commend this wonderful publication for its dedication to serving farms and rural areas and promoting farm family values for 100 years.

AUTHORIZING THE COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY TO INVESTIGATE WHETHER SUFFICIENT GROUNDS EXIST FOR THE IMPEACHMENT OF WILLIAM JEFFERSON CLINTON, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

SPEECH OF

HON. DANNY K. DAVIS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 8, 1998

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to the resolution presented by my colleague from Illinois, Mr. HYDE, to initiate an open ended, unlimited impeachment inquiry of the President of the United States of America.

This resolution is an attempt to do through parliamentary means what could not be done in the last two elections: unseat the President of the United States of America.

Let me state here on the floor of the House what most Americans already know.

This inquiry is not about sexual indiscretion. We have allegations of Presidential sexual indiscretions, some going back 200 years and involving slave women who certainly had no defense against predatory relationships. But no such impeachment inquiry has been initiated before.

This is not about lying. We have had allegations of Presidential lying about the trading of munitions for covert foreign aid and Presidential lying about personal federal income taxes. But no such impeachment inquiries were initiated in response.

Mr. Speaker, there are some in this House who have campaigned for the impeachment of this President for more than six years. Their campaign, fueled by $40 million spent by the Office of Special Council, tens of millions spent by private sources, and millions more spent by assorted Congressional Committees, and the inevitable accompanying leaks have yielded us only a sad, sordid marital infidelity and an endless supply of headlines.

These relentless campaign to impeach the President now hold their sponsors hostage to their own rhetoric. Having failed to find an impeachable offense, there is now relentless pressure to make do with the $60 million scandal—to make the scandal fit the bill.

Mr. Speaker, our Constitution contains a number of examples of purposely ambiguous language in addition to the phrase "high Crimes and Misdemeanors." Consider such language as "due process."

It is precisely such elegant and flexible language which has enabled our democracy to develop, to encompass ever broader sectors of Americans, in ever deeper and more empowering ways.

It is reasonable to expect that as the process of electing our chief executive has become more and more democratic, enfranchising more Americans, more and more directly, that the process for removing that chief executive, of undoing the will of the people, would demand higher and higher standards. It is reasonable to expect that the Congress should not take into itself the power to limit a President, in James Madison's words "... to a tenure during the pleasure of the Senate."

When we "dumb down" the Constitution to meet the needs of partisan politics we inflict deep and lasting harm on our political and Constitutional system. This is the real Constitutional crisis. I do not believe it is accidental that all of our nation's encounters with Presidential impeachment come following periods of great national turmoil—either the executive or legislative branch attempting to use extra-constitutional means of imposing its will on the policy of the nation. Like the attempt to impeach President Johnson in the wake of the Civil War and the debate over how to incorporate African Americans into the body politic or the attempt of President Nixon to undermine his political opponents in the closing days of the War in Vietnam; current attempts to undo the results of two Presidential elections will leave deep, lingering wounds on our nation, but, in the long run, will fail in their attempt to make an end run around the will of the people.

Undoing our Constitution will not advance the search for solutions to the great national and international problems facing America: global economic crisis and growing economic inequality, the undoing of decades of struggle for racial equality in America: the resurgence of national strife around the world, the need to address fundamental problems in health care, education, environment and housing, preserving social security and a host of other critical issues.

I urge my colleagues to oppose this insidious attempt to use, or rather misuse, the power of impeachment.

RETIREMENT OF ARKANSAS STATE REPRESENTATIVE JOHN MILLER

HON. MARION BERRY

OF ARKANSAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, October 9, 1998

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize one of Arkansas' dedicated citizens, on the event of his retirement. It is my privilege to recognize the accomplishments and achievements of Representative John Miller, as he is retiring from the Arkansas State House of Representatives.

State Representative John Miller has served the people of Izard County and portions of Independence and Sharp Counties in the Arkansas General Assembly for 36 years and is retiring this year. As former speaker of the House, John ranks third in seniority in the 100-member House of Representatives.

Before becoming a member of the Legislature, John served as county and circuit clerk in Izard County, chairman of the state Developmental Disabilities Planning Council, as a member of the Melbourne Lions Club and of the chambers of commerce in Melbourne, Batesville, Calico Rock and Horseshoe Bend. He also served on the boards of directors for the Calico Rock Medical Center, the Arkansas Easter Seals Society, North Arkansas Human Services Systems, Inc., Lions World Services for the Blind, the White River Planning and Development District, and Advocacy Services, Inc.

In the 1st District of Arkansas, we say "he is a good man." When you get to Izard County, the roads get wider, the people are happier, life is better and the future is brighter because of John Miller. He is a credit to public service and humanity and the world is better because he is here. I am proud to call him my friend.

CARLOW COLLEGE'S CONTINUING EDUCATION PROGRAMS

HON. WILLIAM J. COYNE

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, October 9, 1998

Mr. COYNE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Carlow College for its efforts in making education available to more working adults.

Carlow College, located in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, was founded in September 1929, as a Catholic institution primarily for women.

Education is very important in today's rapidly changing society. For the past twenty years, Carlow College has continued to make education accessible throughout the Pittsburgh region with the Carlow Weekend College program, started in 1978, and the Carlow Accelerated Program, which began in 1988. These programs give students the choice of either evening courses in the Accelerated Program or weekend classes in the Weekend College. Classes are offered during times that are convenient for most working adults, so that they may continue their education without quitting their regular jobs. This enables many working adults to complete a bachelor's degree. Students may also attend courses designed to upgrade their technical and management skills.

These programs today have 1,100 students and 12 majors. Classes are now offered at nine locations, and the College is currently working to take advantage of the Internet by offering courses on-line.

I want to call national attention to these innovative programs at Carlow College. As Congress works to expand the knowledge and skills of the American work force, it should look at some of the ground breaking programs that are already underway at institutions like Carlow. Thank you.

TRIBUTE TO VIRGINIA HAYES

HON. LOIS CAPPS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, October 9, 1998

Mrs. CAPPS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the memory of Virginia Hayes of Oceano, California. Stricken with Parkinson's disease, Virginia never denied the reality of her diagnosis, living her life with courage and facing her death with dignity; and in so doing truly symbolized the silent struggle of every person afflicted with Parkinson's.

There are at least one million Americans living with Parkinson's, a chronic neurological disorder affecting muscle movement. Its relentless progression systematically robs its victims of every aspect of their lives—a process that dramatically impacts the lives of spouses, families and other loved ones.

While it's commonly accepted that Parkinson's disease is not fatal, no one can tell that to the Hayes family. To the end, Virginia's spirit was strong and brave, but after 23 years of fighting, her otherwise healthy body was exhausted and eventually overcome, her struggle to live defeated by the ravages of Parkinson's.

Just a few months before her death, Virginia took part in the production of an advocacy video designed to educate about Parkinson's disease and promote increased research funding. Titled "The Faces of Parkinson's," the video is a dramatic presentation of Parkinson's effect on individuals and their families. With husband Paul at her side, Virginia allowed us an unflinching look at how Parkinson's devastated her independence and her life. Through her courage, she has left a legacy which serves to inform and inspire us all, and hopefully will in some way lessen the burden on those who share her struggle.

Undoubtedly, this public contribution is but one small piece of the legacy Virginia has left her family and friends—those who stood by her throughout her battle with Parkinson's, as well as other circumstances of life that challenge and reward us all. While Parkinson's disease took her life, it clearly did not define it. The strength it takes to face adversity with resolve and wit is found deep inside. Virginia found and nurtured that place inside herself and understood that love is stronger than death.

I am honored to pay tribute to Virginia Hayes, and to offer our sincerest condolences and best wishes to her husband and her entire family.

CLAY HIGH SCHOOL IN OREGON, OHIO TO REDEDICATE THE CLAY MEMORIAL STADIUM

HON. MARCY KAPTUR

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, October 9, 1998

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize the administration, faculty, staff, students and families of Clay High School in Oregon, Ohio. On October 9, 1998, the Clay High School community will rededicate the Clay Memorial Stadium.

In December, 1941, our nation entered the greatest conflict in human history. Young people from all walks of life served in our armed forces. Many soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines came from the Oregon, Ohio, area and served with honor and distinction as we freed the world of Axis terror and fascism. Some of these young people never returned. They gave their lives for freedom with the hope that our nation and their community would always cherish the gifts that America offers.

It was in this spirit that the Oregon, Ohio, community dedicated the Clay Memorial Stadium, in 1948, to the young men and women who gave their lives in defense of liberty. This year marks the 50th Anniversary of the stadium. The Clay High School family and the Oregon community at large are now embarking on a renovation project to make the stadium's World War II memorial the focus of the facility. The community also plans to add memorials to those who served in Korea, Vietnam and the Gulf War. The renovated stadium promises to be a renewed memorial to those who have made the supreme sacrifice and a symbol of youth and hope as we enter the 21st Century.

Mr. Speaker, as the Congressional author of legislation to create a national World War II
