

save and invest for their future. Tax free home sales, three-year income averaging for farmers and death tax relief will also reduce the burdens on American families. We all know that they can spend the money a whole lot smarter than the Federal Government can.

Mr. Speaker, yesterday the Congress gave the American people more good news on taxes, voting to extend the R&D tax credit through 1999, accelerate the full deductibility of health care costs and extending the work opportunities tax credit. We still have much more to do but this is a great start. What a difference a Republican Congress has made.

LACK OF LEADERSHIP

(Mr. ALLEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, this Congress lacks standing to criticize the President. This is a do-nothing Congress. Look what this Congress has accomplished under the Republican leadership. They have killed a national child care initiative. They have killed a Patients' Bill of Rights. They have killed the tobacco settlement, and they have killed campaign finance reform.

We Democrats are here today fighting for education, trying to salvage something out of a pathetic year. We want smaller class sizes for our kids. We want better school buildings in this country. We want higher education standards for this country. We have got to salvage something because every child in this country deserves a chance to be a productive citizen in this global economy.

The Republican leadership in this Congress cannot run a railroad. It is because they do not want the train to leave the station. And we Democrats are going to stay here fighting for education as long as it takes.

DIFFERENCE BETWEEN FACT AND OPINION

(Mr. CALVERT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CALVERT. Mr. Speaker, there is a difference between fact and opinion. I think any objective observer would look at the facts and agree with this conclusion: We have a part-time President and a full-time fund-raiser.

Just consider the facts: Yesterday the President's New York City fund-raiser was his 100th of the year, yesterday, the 100th fund-raiser of the year. Meanwhile he has had only two cabinet meetings. For those of us who have not had higher math, who were raised on whole math, rain forest math or other liberal nonsense, that works out to approximately one cabinet meeting for every 50 fund-raisers. Of course, we are not sure exactly how much important business was discussed at those two cabinet meetings aside from denials, retractions and half apologies.

This Congress has put aside $1.4 trillion for Social Security, passed a balanced budget, IRS reform and tax cuts, making it perhaps the most successful Congress in a generation. Meanwhile the part-time President allows Saddam Hussein to thumb his nose at us, North Korea to threaten its neighbors and a national missile defense system to remain on the shelf.

REPUBLICAN CONGRESS IS COASTING

(Mr. VENTO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Speaker, after doing half a job, this Congress for the past year has been coasting. Here we are, almost 15 days beyond, two weeks beyond the fiscal year and the budget matters are not being addressed. For these 10 months, bills and proposals that the President put on the table and the Democrats have been pushing on education and investing in people have been languishing. There has been no response.

The Republicans in Congress have said no!

The only Republicans Congress response is to pass some window dressing bills in terms of authorization, then to turn around and not even put the money into the appropriation bills that would fund those important education programs. I think it is time to offer real money for school to put the dollars behind the rhetoric in school construction, to offer more than just duck tape and lip service to deal with the worn out facilities that our children are supposed to be taught with in and learning. I think it is time to put teachers in the classroom and provide smaller class size, the type of quality assistance that our children need today more than ever.

This generation deserves the same investment that past generations had and that others in this country had. Our children are our future. Education is the ticket to success and opportunity in our democracy. Let us vote for these education programs and initiatives.

CRIME AND PUNISHMENT

(Mr. BARR of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, Matthew Shepard a 21-year-old student in Wyoming is dead, brutally murdered by those who for one reason or another did not like him. The perpetrators need to be punished swiftly, thoroughly and appropriately, namely, the death penalty.

Wyoming is trying to do its job. Let us here in the Congress let Wyoming do its job. Wyoming provides for the death penalty in cases such as this. Yet there are those who are clamoring for Federal legislation to "increase penalties for such crimes." One really wonders what would be an increased penalty over the death penalty. I would be interested to see. It may very well violate the constitutional ban against cruel and unusual punishment.

Let us not rush to judgment and pass vastly expansive Federal legislation such as that which came before the Subcommittee on Crime earlier this year which included terms which would provide the basis for Federal jurisdiction which were nowhere defined in Federal law. Passing legislation as a knee jerk reaction to an awful incident is not the best way to govern. We need to resist the urge, let Wyoming and the other States do their jobs.

VIAGRA

(Ms. MCKINNEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. MCKINNEY. Mr. Speaker, pardon me, but today I rise because I am outraged by a New York Times report that the Department of Defense has requested between $50 and $100 million for Viagra, the new sex drug designed for impotent men. Instead of offsetting this request from its $26 billion budget, Secretary Cohen has requested an increase in the 1999 military readiness bill. When the military brass were on Capitol Hill saying that our reasonable belt tightening had resulted in an impotent military, I guess I did not fully understand the scope of the problem.

With $50 million worth of Viagra, the entire military industrial complex will be locked, cocked and ready to rock. Pretty scary.

Mr. Speaker, they just do not get it, with Monica-gate, the Aberdeen Proving Ground sex scandal and widespread sexual assaults throughout the military, our Commander-in-Chief and his Secretary of Defense concocted this idea that our military needs this extra expenditure. Let us have no more talk of this expanding malfunctioning missile salvation operation.

MATTHEW SHEPARD

(Mr. KOLBE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Speaker, the senseless and tragic death of Matthew Shepard in Laramie, Wyoming, following by only a few months on the heels of an equally tragic murder in Jasper, Texas, reminds us of how imperfect are our efforts to eradicate violence, hatred and bigotry in our society. By all accounts, Matthew Shepard was a gentle young man, liked by all who knew him, an unlikely person to incite such mindless and brutal violence in others.

How then does this occur? How do individuals get it fixed in their heads that it is open season on others simply because they are of a different color or different sexual orientation? I do not believe we should engage in an exercise of self-flagellation, but I do believe it is incumbent upon each of us to examine the words we use, the statements we condone, the rhetoric of bigotry we sometimes hear and simply let pass without condemnation because we are preoccupied with other things. We must not tolerate a message of hatred in our midst. We must not give bigotry the fertile soil it needs to flourish.

A loving God has gathered Matthew Shepard to his bosom. He will never face such hate again. That same God may grant his mercy and forgiveness to those who killed him but a harsher justice awaits them in this life.

SCHOOL VIOLENCE

(Ms. CHRISTIAN-GREEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. CHRISTIAN-GREEN. Mr. Speaker, later this week the President will convene a conference to address the issue of school violence.

Mr. Speaker, we can reduce school violence if we have smaller classes where teachers can spend time with each student and identify those who need special intervention. We can prevent school violence if our schools are positive centers of learning and our children are given the tools they need to excel. And we can prevent school violence if our school buildings are just safe, clean and in good repair.

Mr. Speaker, we can get our arms around this problem and more importantly around our children if we pass bills that will increase the number of teachers, reduce class size and build or renovate our schools. We must save our children. We must pass the President's education budget.

TAX REDUCTION

(Mr. WHITFIELD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. WHITFIELD. Mr. Speaker, a few weeks ago this House passed a modest tax reduction for hard working middle class Americans. President Clinton and the Democratic leadership vigorously opposed the tax reduction. They said they opposed it because they incorrectly, I might say, claimed it would take money from Social Security. However, in the last minute back room negotiations on the omnibus appropriation bill, the President and Democratic leadership are not expressing any concern for Social Security. Instead they want to spend billions more of taxpayer dollars for foreign aid, for their favorite environmental programs and for the education bureaucracy in Washington while we want to send it to local school boards.

The President does not want to give the American taxpayers a small tax reduction. Instead he wants to keep the tax dollars in the government and let them spend money on programs he wants. Once again the President and Democrat leadership say one thing in public but they demand something entirely different in private negotiations.

RECORD OF THE 105TH CONGRESS

(Mr. DOGGETT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, in communities all over America, we are trying to support public education, involve parents, improve the quality of education, support professional educators. This Congress has not done its share. Indeed, when this Congress goes home, if we let it go without supporting public education and the Members of Congress wave bye-bye out at the airport, they will be recognizing about the only accomplishment of this Congress, which is the renaming of the airport here in Washington.

The reason nothing has been done is that the priorities greatly differ between Democrats and Republicans. Republicans want to abolish the Department of Education. Republicans want to take money away from public schools and give those monies, those public monies to elite academies.

We believe the time is now to stand for this Congress doing something positively to support local communities who want to improve the quality of public education. That is what this budget battle is all about. Let us stand firmly for public schools and stand firmly against a do-nothing Congress that has nothing at this point to point to as an accomplishment.

MORE ON THE PRESIDENT AND VICE PRESIDENT'S TRAVEL PLANS

(Mr. SOUDER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SOUDER. Mr. Speaker, as a member of the Committee on Education and the Workforce, we have been working on education all year. Indeed in this budget it appears the amounts have been set and we are just negotiating the fine details of where it is going to be put.

The question is why we are here right now, since we knew we were going to come to these straits earlier on this year and we knew what our differences were earlier on. Saturday the President said in his radio address, I do not want to see this Congress walk away from America's school children. Then he went out to play golf for a couple hours. Then he walked away all of yesterday and into last night for two fund-raisers in New York.

Today the Vice President flew out down to Palm Beach, Florida for a fund-raiser down there. Then he goes to Miami for a fund-raiser. Then he goes to Coral Gables for a fund-raiser. In between he talks at a school in Miami about the need for us to deal with school kids.

Mr. Speaker, the President and the Vice President should have been dealing with the education issue and working out the differences between an elected House and an elected Senate and an elected President and Vice President a long time ago, not trotting off and doing fund-raisers and press conferences.

THE REASON WE ARE HERE TODAY

(Mr. MILLER of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, the reason we are here today is because of the differences between the Republicans and the Democrats about our children's education. We believe, as the American people do, that our local districts need help in rebuilding crumbling schools, that our schools ought to be made safe, that children should no longer go to school in made-over closets and made-over teacher lounges, in made-over storage areas. They ought to have a safe and decent place to go to school.

We believe that we ought to make every effort to try to help districts lower the teacher/pupil ratio so that teachers can spend more time with individual students. That is the important work that ought to be done here. It should have been done earlier, but the Republicans were so excited about impeachment that they forgot America's children. That work has to be done.

The problem is there are even differences within the Republican Party about this education program. We believe that this money ought to make sure that we can, in fact, reduce class size. We can, in fact, build new schools and repair schools and make a difference for America's children as opposed to trying to provide a program that allows governors to walk off with the money.

BEST WISHES FOR FORMER CONGRESSMAN DANTE FASCELL

(Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, all of us in this chamber and back home in South Florida send our best wishes to our former House colleague, Congressman Dante Fascell.

For almost 40 years, Dante Fascell led the charge in the House of Representatives for respect for human rights internationally and fostering democracy and freedom throughout the world.

As chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, Congressman Fascell worked tirelessly in a bipartisan manner to promote our American ideals of
