

I hope this information is helpful.

Sincerely,

R.R. WESTON,
Chief, Office of Legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GILCHREST. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I do look forward to next year working with the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. CLEMENT) and the staff on both sides of the committee. I think we can further spread the idea that our coastal waters are worth saving. The Coast Guard does a great job in dealing with the fisheries issue, the illegal immigrants issue, the whole maritime safety issue, the environmental pollution areas that they work hard on on a very daily, regular basis, and the issue of the interdiction of drugs. I think on every facet of this legislation, we have worked in an atmosphere of cooperation, and we certainly appreciate that on our side of the aisle.

Mr. CLEMENT. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GILCHREST. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. GILCHREST) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the resolution, H. Res. 602.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. GILCHREST. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H. Res. 602.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

APPOINTMENT OF MEMBERS TO BRITISH-AMERICAN INTER- PARLIAMENTARY GROUP

Mr. BEREUTER, Nebraska, chairman
Mr. REGULA, Ohio, vice chairman
Mr. BOEHLERT, New York
Mr. BATEMAN, Virginia
Mr. GILLMOR, Ohio
Mrs. ROUKEMA, New Jersey
Mr. BALLENGER, North Carolina
Mr. BLUNT, Missouri

Mr. SISISKY, Virginia
Mr. PICKETT, Virginia
Mr. WISE, West Virginia
Mr. TANNER, Tennessee
There was no objection.

HELPING OUR COMMUNITIES

(Mr. PASCRELL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. PASCRELL. Mr. Speaker, we have Federal investment in roads, bridges and prisons, but when it comes to schools for our kids this is a loss of home rule all of a sudden. Bunk. For the Federal Government to help local communities pay the interest on capital bonding for school construction which would provide relief for our kids and relief for parents who pay the bill whether or not they have kids in those schools or not, this is our opportunity for better schools. This is our opportunity, and we need more teachers to help reduce class size, particularly for kids between the grades of pre-K and fourth and fifth grades. We need property tax relief in many States in this union, and this is the way to do it.

One suggestion in conclusion: Why do we not give up the words, the simplistic liberal and conservative words? Mr. Speaker, the jig is up. They do not work any longer.

We all know that the environment in which our children learn plays a direct role in the education that they receive. If we want our children to succeed in a modern economy, we must provide them with modern schools. That is why I adamantly support school construction and modernization funds.

Unfortunately, the majority party does not want to provide our schools with these much needed construction and modernization funds. Instead, the Republicans believe that we should block grant our education funds to the states. Unfortunately, we have already found out what happens when we block grant these funds. In the 1980s, the federal commitment for these grants decreased by 52 percent.

I am afraid that we are headed in the wrong direction on our elementary and secondary education policies. Every day, we see a new study which shows just how important it is to educate our children in an adequate facility, with a well-trained teacher and a class size of about 18.

Block grants do not provide the solutions. The Democratic education agenda does.

We must fix our crumbling schools by helping states and local school districts afford the costs of modernizing and building more than 5,000 schools.

In my district in New Jersey I found that almost one quarter of the schools were built prior to the completion of World War I. More than half of the schools were built before the attack on Pearl Harbor.

The old age of these schools is leading to problems with their physical condition and 88 percent of them say they need at least one significant repair.

The facts are clear. Our schools are old and they are overcrowded. The average class size in these schools is an astounding 23.9 students.

And if that is not enough, the problem is sure to get worse as we experience the projected increase in enrollment.

Our children can't learn when their desks are in hallways and overcrowded cafeterias. We know that smaller class sizes are the key to raising academic achievement and improving classroom discipline.

THE REPUBLICAN LEADERSHIP OWES AMERICANS AN APOLOGY AND AN EXPLANATION

(Mr. EDWARDS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks and include therein extraneous material.)

Mr. EDWARDS. Shame, shame, shame. Mr. Speaker, the Republican leadership in Congress owes the American people an explanation and an apology.

In articles in the Washington Post and Rollcall newspapers Republican leaders are bragging that they held up two major international treaties in this House. Why? Because they demanded that the Electronics Industry Association fire its new president simply because he is a Democrat. Let me repeat. The Republicans in Congress held up legislation that was going to benefit millions of American citizens because they wanted to force a private association to fire a private citizen because simply he was a Democrat. That is wrong.

Mr. Speaker, the American people and press should be outraged at this arrogant, arrogant abuse of power. In a free society to stop the business of this Congress to punish a private citizen for his political affiliation is outrageous, mean-spirited and, most likely, illegal. The American people deserve an apology and an explanation.

NO DEMOCRAT NEED APPLY, HOUSE GOP

TELLS LOBBY

(By Juliet Eilperin)

Electronics industry lobbyist John Palafoutas told the Electronic Industries Alliance weeks ago it shouldn't hire former Democratic representative David McCurdy (Okla.) as its new president, but the industry association he belongs to didn't listen.

In an August meeting, Arne Christenson, chief of staff for House Speaker Newt Gingrich (R-GA.), had made it clear to Palafoutas, a fellow Republican, that the House leadership would not look kindly upon seeing another Democrat promoted to a key job at a business lobbying group.

"He said, Tell EIA they ought to be careful about Dave McCurdy," recalled Palafoutas, a lobbyist for AMP Inc. who dutifully relayed the message to EIA vice president John Kelly. "It's fair [to say] that the leadership is angry."

In fact, House GOP leaders became so enraged when the EIA announced McCurdy's selection last week that Gingrich declared in a closed-door meeting that he would not discuss legislation with the former lawmaker, according to Republicans who attended. Gingrich and most other top Republicans also instructed their staffs not to meet with any EIA officials. Republican leaders, who had hoped the group would select retiring Rep. Bill Paxon (R-N.Y.), also delayed passage of noncontroversial legislation concerning international copyrights, a bill the EIA supports, for four days in an effort to send a message to the group. Gingrich spokeswoman Christina Martin said she could not comment on private conversations but made clear how displeased Republicans were with the association's choice of a Democrat.

"Any smart business executive will tell you it is always a good idea to have someone who can walk the walk, talk the talk," Martin said. "When dealing with a Republican-controlled Congress, that means hiring Republicans."

Rep. John Linder (R-Ga.), chairman of the National Republican Campaign Committee, who confirmed that the leadership was sending a message to EIA by postponing a vote implementing two 1996 World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) treaties, said Republicans want to expose the hypocrisy of former Democratic staff members and lawmakers now representing business groups.

"They whisper in the ear of the people who hire them that they're with them, then they go to a Democratic prayer group and meet and pray for a Democratic majority", Linder said.

The unusually public spat, which started Thursday when Gingrich, Majority Leader Richard K. Armey (R-Tex.) and Majority Whip Tom DeLay (D-Tex.) pulled the WIPO bill from the House calendar, marks the latest flar-up in the occasionally tense relationship between GOP leaders and business lobbyists. Every since they captured the majority in 1994, Republicans have complained that lobbyists have failed to give them either the campaign contributions or the respect they are due.

Even Republicans who made the transition from Congress to the private sector say that the lobbying community is still dominated by Democrats who thrived by virtue of their connections to Hill barons of the past.

"There is still a disconnect," said Ed Gillespie, Armey's former press secretary and now president of Policy Impact Communications. "That's a result of Democrats being in control for 40 years and Republicans being in control for four."

In the leadership meeting Friday, Republicans said, lawmakers mused about how powerful trade associations were savvy enough to hire Republicans as consultants but had failed to install GOP stalwarts at the helms of their groups. A slew of recent Democratic appointments has angered leaders, including those of Thomas M. Downs as the National Association of Home Builders' chief executive; John Hilley, who had been White House legislative liaison, as executive vice president for strategic planning at the National Association of Securities Dealers; and Tim Forde, who worked for Rep. Edward J. Markey (D-Mass), as the Investment Company Institute's vice president for strategic analysis.

By appointing Democrats to such prominent posts, argued Mark Rodgers, chief of staff to Sen. Rick Santorum (R-Pa.), trade groups undermine their ability to forge close ties with Republicans.

"At what point can you trust that what you're sharing on inside strategy or tactics aren't going directly back to the Democratic leadership?" Rodgers said.

The EIA says it was only trying to find a leader who combined business and political experience. While some member companies are considering challenging McCurdy's selection when the group's board meets today, outgoing president Peter McCloskey said he was confident McCurdy would win its backing.

"The job is to be a spokesperson for the industry, not so much a lobbyist for the industry," McCloskey said. "I'm not saying there's no political component to the job, but it's not the overriding component."

Some Democrats openly mocked the GOP leaders' strategy. Rep. Barney Frank (D-Mass.) referred to the incident Monday before the WIPO bill finally passed by saying, "That was not one of the finest hours of this institution when this bill got derailed because of a dispute about a job."

Even some Republicans who believe the lobbying community has to change its approach were leery of this open feuding. Said Rep. Jim Greenwood (R-Pa.). "You can look a little power-hungry at times."

GOP FEUDING ABOUT LOBBYIST

BOEHNER, DELAY BLAST EACH OTHER ON MCCURDY JOB

(By Jim VandeHei and John Bresnahan)

House Republican Conference Chairman John Boehner (R-Ohio) and Majority Whip Tom DeLay (R-Texas) are locked in a bitter feud over the GOP leadership's decision to demand that the Electronic Industries Alliance (EIA) dump their incoming President, former Rep. David McCurdy (D-Okla.).

In their latest move to purge Democrats from leadership jobs at prominent trade association and lobbying firms—known internally as the "K Street Strategy"—Republican leaders are pressuring EIA to oust McCurdy, who hasn't formally been installed as EIA's president yet, and hire a Republican to run the group.

While virtually every Republican leader endorsed the hard-line approach, including Speaker Newt Gingrich (R-Ga.), Boehner is furious that DeLay's operation has worked behind his back to oust McCurdy in recent days, several sources confirmed. Boehner, the leadership's liaison to K Street and outside business coalitions, was quietly working out a deal to have EIA company CEOs remove McCurdy before DeLay stepped in and started busting heads.

At a raucous leadership meeting Friday afternoon, Boehner blasted DeLay for interfering in his business and striking such a bellicose tone with EIA and its members. DeLay defiantly demanded that Republican leaders, including Boehner, needed to twist arms and play hardball in order to get results, according to sources familiar with the meeting.

The confrontation between Boehner and DeLay, whose animosity toward each other is well known inside GOP leadership circles, followed a scathing e-mail on Thursday from Boehner's chief of staff Barry Jackson to Gingrich blasting the tactics of DeLay's operation, the sources said.

But the internal GOP leadership fight will not derail the coordinated effort to once again send EIA and all of K Street a clear message: Republicans won't deal with trade associations and lobbying groups run by Democrats.

McCurdy, who would not comment, could be the latest victim.

National Republican Congressional Committee Chairman John Linder (R-Ga.) said he and other leaders are pressuring EIA board members and affiliated companies to reject McCurdy as their new president when the board meets this Wednesday in Phoenix.

"We think they ought to look back and see who won the last couple of elections," said Linder, who confirmed that Republican leaders held intellectual property legislation favored by many EIA members hostage to "send a message."

The legislation—which implements copyright changes required for the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) treaties—was scheduled for floor action on Thursday, but Gingrich, Majority Leader Richard Armey (R-Texas), and DeLay decided to block the bill and spread the word on K Street.

Meanwhile, members of the leadership were instructed to call EIA member companies and demand that McCurdy be removed and a Republican be hired. Rep. Bill Paxon (R-N.Y.), who said he interviewed for the job but was told the companies were not interested in talking to incumbent Members of Congress, has been mentioned as a possibility.

"I will be contacting companies and recommending they do more interviewing before making this decision," GOP Conference Vice Chair Jennifer Dunn (R-Wash.) said.

Linder also has set up what one source called a "phone bank" to help lean on EIA members. Several EIA member companies bowed to the pressure and plan to call for McCurdy's head at the board meeting.

John Palafoutas, director of federal relations at AMP Inc., an EIA company, is unhappy about the selection of McCurdy to lead the organization.

"I'm concerned about the kind of reaction this is getting over on Capitol Hill," said Palafoutas. "Republicans are sensitive to the fact that the high-tech industry has supported President Clinton and the Democrats."

A Republican lobbyist with strong ties to EIA said that some companies want the EIA board to abrogate the contract with McCurdy.

"They have a lot of money," said the lobbyist. "They can do something."

For their part, EIA officials claim that they haven't been contacted by GOP leaders about the issue and argue that they plan to hire an assistant for McCurdy with strong GOP credentials.

"No one has called us," said Mark Rosenker, EIA's vice president of public affairs. "We did not get a single phone call here. I respect Mr. DeLay. But we did not get a single official contact. No official call came . . . to anyone in our leadership from a Member of Congress. That's why I find this so intriguing and puzzling. This man has been out of politics for four years. I just found it incredible."

In a related matter, Linder said he also told the National Association of Home Builders that GOP leaders have less interest in working with their group because they hired a Democrat as CEO. "They came to see me yesterday," Linder said. "I told them I am not going to get to know [new NAHB CEO Tom Down]. So save your time."

"They would be making a terrible mistake to [shut us out]," said current NAHB CEO Kent Colton. "But they are not going to make a big deal about that because it would be too big of a mistake."

Colton said NAHB, which will hand out $2.4 million total this election cycle, gives a majority of its contributions to Republicans and that he expects the association will continue to have a close working relationship with Republican leaders.
