

vulnerable patients will be able to choose their own doctors.

Yes, it bans the little parrots that are given to our doctors who say, "Don't give them any care to them; see them only for 10 minutes."

Do you know what the Republicans do? They do not allow you to choose your own doctor. They send women out of the hospital before 48 hours after they have had a mastectomy; and, yes, they keep asking you to pay for those high, high prescription drugs.

Americans want a real Patient's Bill of Rights, not the whiplash that comes quickly and hurts long. Support the Democratic Patient's Bill of Rights and get real health care reform, real managed care reform for America.

AMERICA VULNERABLE TO FOREIGN MISSILE ATTACK

(Ms. DUNN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, the Preamble to the United States Constitution states that the Federal Government shall have the responsibility to provide for the common defense. Protecting our national security is, in fact, the first duty and the primary obligation of the President, our commander-in-chief.

But America is vulnerable today, vulnerable to a missile attack from abroad. It is a shame that it has taken nuclear blasts in India and Pakistan to convince American leaders that the time to act is now.

Many Americans are unaware of this, but if a missile were fired at an American city, the United States would be defenseless against it. This is a shocking realization when you consider that there are many nations that have the capability of reaching American soil with long-range nuclear missiles.

The potential threat to every child in America demands that we take decisive action to protect ourselves from the uncertainty that exists in the world today. It is time to honor our obligation to the Constitution and to the American people by building a missile defense system. No less than the security of our Nation and the safety of our children is at stake.

KEEPING WHAT IS ALREADY YOURS

(Mr. TIAHRT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Speaker, this Congress intends to focus like a laser beam on an issue of particular importance to families. It's called tax cuts. Many Americans are moving ahead in these economic good times, but some families are having trouble making ends meet.

While the liberals believe that the way to improve the standard of living of hard-pressed working families is to propose more job training programs and more Washington-directed education programs, the same ones which have failed miserably in the past, Republicans have a much better idea. Republicans want to help ordinary working families by letting them keep more of their own money. No need for theory or hopes that some day these Federal training programs will trickle down to real people. No, the Republicans can help families make ends meet, save for that first home or pay off those credit cards by giving them a tax cut.

Actually, the government would not be giving them anything. It would mean that the government would let people keep more of their own hard-earned money.

ACCEPTING RESPONSIBILITY FOR TEACHING MORALS AND VALUES

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, once in America, parents imparted their values and morals to their children. Today, it is out with parents, in with computers. Some even liken it to a Tower of Babel in each family room.

Check this out. Last month a woman gave birth on the Internet; and today two teenagers announced, through their attorney, no less, that they will surrender their virginity live on the Internet. Unbelievable. What is next? A late-term abortion? How about an on-line sacrifice to Satan, folks?

Beam-me-up.com.

I say it is time for these computer companies to shove their software up their hard drives live on the Internet.

One last thing, on a serious note. I believe America is in sad shape when computers begin to replace parents in passing down our morals and values.

I yield back any common sense left in the country.

FREEDOM AND PRIVACY RESTORATION ACT

(Mr. PAUL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Freedom and Privacy Restoration Act, which repeals those sections of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 authorizing an establishment of Federal standards for birth certificates and drivers' licenses.

This obscure provision, which was part of a major piece of legislation passed at the end of the 104th Congress, represents a major power grab by the Federal Government and a threat to the liberties of every American, for it would transform State drivers' licenses into national ID cards.

If this scheme is not stopped, no American will be able to get a job, open a bank account, apply for Social Security or Medicare, exercise their second amendment rights, or even take an airplane flight until they can produce a State driver's license that is the equivalent of conforming to Federal specifications. Under the 1996 Kennedy-Kassebaum health care reform law, Americans may be forced to present a federally approved driver's license before consulting their doctors for medical treatment.

My fellow colleagues, make no doubt about this, this is a national I.D. card. We do not need it. Please join me in an effort to stop it.

PLEDGE TO FULLY FUND THE E- RATE PROGRAM

(Mr. RUSH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RUSH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to alert my colleagues to the growing threat to the E-rate program. This key provision of the Telecommunications Act of 1996 makes sure that our Nation's poorest children do not get left behind along the information superhighway by providing telecommunications services at a discounted cost to poor and rural schools and libraries.

To date, more than 30,000 applications for the program have been received, including over 200 in my district. As part of the Telecommunications Act, long distance companies agree to support the E-rate program through their contributions to the Universal Service Fund. In exchange, the industry has reaped billions of dollars in lower access charges and expanded market share. Now they want to renege on the deal.

Today I am calling on my colleagues to pledge their commitment to seeing that the E-rate program is fully funded. To pull the plug on full funding of the E-rate program is to further exacerbate the great digital divide between the haves and have-nots and will leave our children unprepared to move into the new millennium. Let us not let that happen.

SIGN EDUCATION SAVINGS ACCOUNT INTO LAW

(Mr. ROGAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ROGAN. Mr. Speaker, the Republican-led House voted overwhelmingly for Education Savings Accounts to give every American family the power to improve the educational choices for their children. Not every family today can afford a home computer or the SAT prep course, but through IRA-style Education Savings Accounts, Republicans hope to make these education expenses more available to children.

Who is in a better position to use this money to help improve our Nation's education needs, Washington bureaucrats or American families? That is the decision that must be made.

Mr. Speaker, the best way to help improve education is to give each family more of their own money so they can choose what and how to help their children. For this to happen, President Clinton must free our children from the education bondage of special interests and sign the Education Savings Account conference report into law.

TRUTH IN BILLING

(Mr. BLUMENAUER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, the authors of the Education Rate are distressed by the current controversy, since the discount was supposed to be paid for through the hefty savings the telephone companies received as a result of deregulation, almost $3 billion as of July 1998.

That is why I have introduced H.R. 4018 to give consumers "truth in billing." It would require a GAO report on how much money has actually been saved as a result of deregulation and how much of that savings has been passed back to consumers. In addition, it would require that those companies seeking to put additional line items on their bills reflect the full and accurate picture of both costs and savings that have resulted from the Federal regulatory action.

There is no reason for confusion. At a time when the majority of classrooms in America do not have Internet access, and when the numbers for the poor and the rural areas are even worse, it is important for Congress to cut through the confusion, keep our commitment to our schools and libraries, and most important, to America's children.

TRIBUTE TO THE COURAGE AND BRAVERY OF OUTSTANDING STUDENTS AT THURSTON HIGH SCHOOL IN SPRINGFIELD, OR

(Mr. BARR of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Jake and Josh Ryker, Adam Walburger, and Doug and David Ure for their courage and bravery.

On May 21, 1998 these students witnessed a fellow classmate walk into the Thurston High School cafeteria in Springfield, Oregon, and begin shooting. Jake Ryker, after being shot through the chest, grabbed the suspect around the waist and threw him down, knocking the rifle out of his hands. His brother Josh and three other students followed Jake's lead and jumped on the suspect and held him on the floor until teachers arrived to provide assistance.

The Ryker brothers and their family attribute these boys' confidence and quick thinking to their familiarity with firearms and the training they received as Boy Scouts. I would add to this a strong family that taught these brothers courage, integrity and compassion for their fellow man.

Clearly, the actions of Jake and Josh Ryker, Adam Walburger, and Doug and David Ure saved more lives and prevented more students from being injured or killed.

Mr. Speaker, I take this moment to honor the courage and bravery of these fine young men for acting above and beyond the call of duty in defense of their fellow classmates at Thurston High School in Springfield, Oregon.

MANAGED CARE REFORM

(Mr. GREEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GREEN. Mr. Speaker, I find it ironic that the same people that preached and lectured this Congress about the importance of personal responsibility and accountability for one's actions during the welfare reform bill are taking the opposite position on managed care reform.

This is really about the same thing: being accountable for the decisions we make. We should be responsible for our actions, whether one is a Member of Congress voting, a welfare recipient looking for work, or an HMO deciding not to pay for a test or a procedure that the doctor says is medically necessary.

Why should HMOs be given preferential treatment and held to a different standard than the doctors they employ or the patient that they are supposed to serve?

The Republican managed care bill will not hold HMOs accountable when they make these medical decisions.

One thing this decision does is clearly define where everyone stands on the issue. We should be fighting for a bill that requires timely internal and external appeals; access to specialists or special needs; point of service choice for employees and the patients; open communication between patients and their doctors; no gag rule; and accountability of the medical decision-maker.

We need real health care reform, not a false hope.

DOLLARS TO THE CLASSROOM ACT

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to seek support for our Nation's children to learn and our teachers to teach by supporting H.R. 3248, the Dollars to the Classroom Act. This bill will send at least 95 cents of every Federal dollar for 31 K-through-12 education programs to our children's classrooms. That means that $2.7 billion will be taken from the grasp of bureaucrats and put into the hands of a teacher who knows our child's name. Mr. Speaker, that means that every classroom in America will get an additional $425 on an average of $9,300 per public school. I urge my colleagues to join this important effort to redistribute education tax dollars away from bureaucrats to students, parents and teachers.

Instead of paying for reports, studies, and layers of bureaucracy, I ask my colleagues to pay for teachers' salaries, textbooks, computers and other supplies. Let us put our children first, let us put their education first, let us turn rhetoric into action by passing the Dollars to the Classroom Act before our children return to school next fall.

DEMOCRATS LOVE TO TAX

(Mr. KINGSTON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, today we have heard liberal after liberal, Democrat after Democrat, excuse me, I am being redundant, speak in favor of a new $2 billion tax increase. They are so proud of the Gore tax. Every time you call your mother, it is going to cost you a little bit more. Every time you have a medical emergency, a friend out of town, it is going to cost you more. Any time you have a loved one in California you want to call from the East Coast, it is going to cost you more, and the Democrats are so happy about it.

Why are they happy about it? Well, for one thing, any tax is a good tax. We love all taxes. Another reason they are happy: we did not have to vote on it. It got sneaked in by their comrades in the Federal bureaucracy who sneaked it in. Not one congressional vote.

I would say to my liberal colleagues, we know you like taxes. Why do we not vote on it? Since you are so proud of tax increases, why not bring this matter to the floor so that the Vice President can run on a new platform: I increased your phone taxes. I increased it for the poor people, I increased it for the old, I increased it for those on fixed incomes, and let them brag about it on the House floor.

STRONG SUPPORT FOR E-RATE

(Mr. REYES asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. REYES. Mr. Speaker, I am gladly standing this morning in support of the E-rate. I believe this country's most valuable resource to be our children, and education is key to their development. In a world where computers are defining their very lives, our educational institutions must include technology. The genius of American education is that whether rich or poor, our children are given the opportunity to gain that knowledge.
