

information is particularly important in an emergency. The legislation we are introducing today will therefore require OSHA not only to standardize the format for MSDSs, but also to ensure that they are written at a literacy level that is appropriate for the typical industrial worker.

Mr. President, the legislation we are introducing today will not only make it easier for employers to comply with important OSHA safety standards, but it will also ensure that their employees have better access to accurate and up-to-date safety information that they can both read and understand. Enactment of the WIRED Act will result in safer, more efficient workplaces, and I encourage all of my colleagues to join us as cosponsors.

SENATE RESOLUTION 199—DESIGNATING "NATIONAL YOUTH FITNESS WEEK"

Mr. TORRICELLI submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

S. RES. 199

Whereas we are witnessing a historic decrease in the health of our Nation's adolescents with only 22 percent of our children physically active for the recommended 30 minutes each day and nearly 15 percent of American youths almost completely inactive;

Whereas even physical education classes are on the decline with 75 percent of students in America not attending daily physical education classes and 25 percent of students not participating in any form of physical education in schools, which is a decrease in participation of almost 20 percent in just 4 years;

Whereas more than 60,000,000 people, 1/3 of the Nation's population, are overweight and even more disturbing, the percentage of overweight adolescents has doubled in the last 30 years;

Whereas these serious trends have resulted in a decrease in the self-esteem of, and an increase in the risk of future health problems for, our Nation's adolescents;

Whereas adolescents represent the future of the Nation and the decrease in physical fitness in the United States may destroy our future potential unless we invest in our youthful population today to increase our productivity and stability tomorrow;

Whereas regular physical activity has proven effective in fighting depression, anxiety, premature death, diabetes, heart disease, high blood pressure, colon cancer, and a variety of weight problems;

Whereas physical fitness campaigns help encourage consideration of the mental and physical health of our Nation's youth; and

Whereas Congress should take steps to reverse a trend which, if not resolved, could destroy future opportunities for millions of today's youth because a healthy child makes a healthy, happy, and productive adult: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates the week beginning with the last Sunday in April of each calendar year as "National Youth Fitness Week";

(2) urges parents, families, caregivers, and teachers to encourage and help adolescents to participate in athletic activities and to teach adolescents to engage in healthy lifestyles; and

(3) requests the President to issue a proclamation each calendar year designating such week as "National Youth Fitness Week" and encouraging the people of the United States to observe this week with appropriate activities and celebrations.

Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. President, I rise today to address a crisis facing our youngest citizens. Physical inactivity among our children is threatening the very foundation of the health of our nation. Physical inactivity and poor diet together account for at least 300,000 deaths in the United States each year. Only tobacco use contributes to more preventable deaths. More than 58 million American adults, one third of the population, are overweight or obese. Even more alarming, childhood obesity rates are rising with 22 percent of children now overweight, a percentage that has doubled in the past 30 years.

This growing trend of inactivity is especially dangerous for our younger generations. According to the National Center for Health Statistics, nearly half of our young people aged 12-21 do not engage in vigorous physical activity on a regular basis. In fact, only 22 percent of American children are physically active for the recommended 30 minutes each day and nearly 15 percent are completely inactive. As the Centers for Disease Control point out, these destructive behaviors established during youth are likely to extend into adulthood. We must be proactive in setting a positive example for our children and stop the negative behavior before it starts.

To plant the seed for a healthy future, we must continue to cultivate and educate our children. Fostering enjoyment of exercise in our adolescents will spur them to maintain a healthy lifestyle into adulthood. The result will be fewer physical and mental disorders and increased productivity. As Dr. C. Everett Koop recently pointed out "this is not an issue requiring additional fact-finding before action is taken." The time for action is now.

A national commitment to lifetime fitness must be fostered. Congress has the opportunity and the responsibility to step forward and take a crucial leadership role. Several programs are currently addressing this important issue but they need our active support: the CDC's National Physical Activity Initiative, the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, C. Everett Koop's "Shape Up America" campaign, the YMCA's Healthy Kids Day, and most recently, the National Sporting Good Association's "Wannabe Cool, Gottabe Active" campaign.

These programs, and others like them, need our encouragement, our gratitude and our support. That is why I am here today. To submit a resolution declaring the last week in April National Youth Fitness Week. Together we can reverse the trend in physical inactivity and restore our nation to a course of wellness, fitness and productivity. It is our responsibility as the nation's leaders to ensure a healthy America.
